RIVAL TONGS TAKE WAR - PATH DIRIGIBLE ARRIVES

PLAN NATION-WIDE OUTBREAK IN SECRET MEETINGS IN CITIES

Police Squads Patrol
Chinese Sections;
Five Are Killed

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The Hip Sings and the On Leongs are at war again, and today, after three years of peace, the terror of death spread once more through the Chinatowns of half a dozen American cities.

Within their secret chambers, gathered around low-burning lights, the generals of the country's two most powerful tongs are marshaling their henchmen and gunmen for an outbreak which threatens, before many days, to extend from coast to coast.

Five Chinese already lie dead in morgues in Chicago, Philadelphia and New York. Until they were killed there was little to show that the two societies, which for years have been mortal enemies, were preparing to resume their age-old warfare. Seldom can detectives and police trace their mysterious plans.

Specially picked squads of detectives strolled the narrow, crooked streets of New York's Chinatown today. Inspector McAuliffe had doubled the police squads.

At the corner of Mott and Pell streets, before a large bulletin board the officers found a crowd of agitated Chinese chattering like magpies.

Occasionally a slant-eyed Oriental would emerge from a nearby building and paste a large sheet of paper, inscribed with Chinese characters, on the board. Each time the chattering would rise excitedly. Efforts to learn the meaning of the information were futile.

This was the bulletin board which gave Chinatown the latest reports from the "war front."

Behind a penny arcade three doors north of Pell Street is a shooting gallery. Its business in the last six weeks has tripled. Almost any hour of the day a large group of Chinese can be found in front of it, practicing their marksmanship with revolvers and rifles.

The last tong war between the Hip Sings and the On Leongs lasted from the early autumn of 1924 to October 1925. In the first three months more than fifty Chinese were murdered by rival tongmen. The Chinese Merchants Association, the Chinese Benevolent Association and even the Chinese legation at Washington made repeated efforts to effect a truce, but to no avail.

Towards the last, however, government officials stepped in. They rounded up 206 Chinese within a single week and deported 180 of them. Hostilities soon died and Chinatown became quieted. The average Chinese is said to fear deportation almost as much as death.

The recent establishment of a gambling house in Newark, N. J., by the Hip Sings, police believe, is what caused the new outbreak.

At any rate Sammy Ong, high On Leong leader, has admitted that war actually has been declared and that the fight started "through a misunderstanding somewhere out west."

WITNESS SAYS HE WAS KIDNAPED IN CHICAGO ON PRIMARY DAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—The trial of sixteen men charged with conspiracy in connection with disturbances at the April primary was reopened here today with cross-examination of Paumpey Cornelius, Negro, who yesterday testified that one of the defendants kidnaped him on primary day to keep him from voting.

The sixteen defendants are alleged to be henchmen of Morris Eller and his son, Judge Emanuel Eller, twentieth ward political leader. The Ellers also are under indictment for conspiracy, but will be tried separately.

Cornelius pointed out John Armand and Peter Pacelli as the two men who kidnaped him. He also identified Joe Prekall, another of the defendants, as being present.

TRUAX SAYS FARMER WAS BANKRUPTED

COLUMBUS, Oct. 16.—Deliberate bankruptcy of the American farmer was charged by Charles V. Truax, Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator, at a third ward Democratic club meeting here last night.

Truax charged the Republicans have turned other interests have protection, but had never aided the farmer.

AIR LINER SERVICE BETWEEN SPAIN AND S. AMERICA IS PLAN

Representative Of King
Will Establish Terminals

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The flight of the Graf Zeppelin was only a preliminary inauguration of regular trans-Atlantic air passenger service between Spain and South America, Col. Emilio Herrera, head of the Spanish army's air service, told the United Press today.

Col. Herrera, who was a passenger on the Graf Zeppelin as official representative of King Alfonso of Spain, discussed the future of dirigible passenger service in an exclusive interview at his hotel here. Col. Herrera arrived late last night from Lakehurst, in company with several other passengers.

Col. Herrera revealed that the intention was to lease the Graf Zeppelin for service between Spain and South America until such time as a fleet of regular dirigibles could be built and commissioned.

Regarding the report that the Graf Zeppelin had been sold to Spain, Col. Herrera said it had not been done to his knowledge, although he was over the ocean at the time the announcement was made.

Col. Herrera is proceeding to Buenos Aires as soon as possible to make plans for the great dirigible terminal to be built there.

The contracts, totalling nearly $10,000,000 have been awarded to an American construction and financing firm, it was understood.

CHARGES AGAINST DAVEY ARE ANSWERED BY STATE CHAIRMAN

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—Charges by the Republican state organization that Congressman Martin L. Davey, Democratic nominee for governor, was abusing his congressional frank privilege and was using it to promote his candidacy, were scored today by Democratic State Chairman Henry G. Brunner, who declared "they will prove a boomerang" for Davey.

"I am amazed," Brunner said, "that the Republican state chairman would resort to such deliberate attempts to blacken the character of Davey by his representation."

"Voters are beginning to recall instances in every campaign of recent years, as well as the present one, where Republican candidates have literally blanketed the state with congressional speeches and statements mailed under their personal frank. I have specifically in mind speeches mailed out by the present senatorial candidate, Burton and Fess."

ASSOCIATION MEETS
COLUMBUS, Oct. 16.—The nineteenth annual convention of the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards, will open here today. More than 700 realtors were expected to attend. Ray C. Smith of Cleveland, association president, said the convention promised to be "the greatest" in years.

DAVEY AND COOPER WILL ATTEND GAME SATURDAY FOR REST

Davey And Truax To Appear In Xenia; Fess
On Tour

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—Congressman Martin L. Davey and Myers Y. Cooper, the Democratic and Republican gubernatorial candidates, will spend next Saturday afternoon at the Ohio State-Michigan game at the Ohio stadium here.

After engaging the first five days of the week in a little game of their own—that of political maneuvering and campaigning, the nominees will take a day of rest and watch others do the playing.

With the election only two weeks off, it is considered most unusual to either Davey or Cooper to declare a holiday and judging from the speaking programs each is scheduled to carry out, there is little chance that either will have another breathing spell until the eve of Nov. 6.

Opening at Cleveland today after a swing through central and central Ohio, Davey will continue his march on votes until he has visited twelve Ohio cities and towns by Saturday night. These engagements, however, are only those which have been scheduled by the Democratic state speakers' bureau, and do not include the impromptu and extemporaneous addresses the Democratic nominee will make in smaller towns en route.

Among the cities in which Davey is scheduled for addresses are New Philadelphia, Wooster and Millersburg on Wednesday; Urbana, Kenton, Bellefontaine and Marysville on Thursday; Xenia, Washington C. H., and Dayton on Friday, and Dayton, Saturday night.

Cooper's itinerary calls for meetings in Fulton, Williams and Defiance County today, an all-day campaign meeting at Toledo tomorrow, Columbus on Thursday; Huron County Friday; Fremont on Friday night, and Columbus on Saturday.

With the election day closing in on them, all candidates for major offices were hard at work this week.

Speaking at Toledo before the League of Women Voters today, Charles V. Truax, Democratic nominee for United States senator, asked "equality for agriculture" by electing men who are pledged to support legislation favorable to the farm.

Wednesday and Thursday of this week, Truax will hold meetings in Celina and Van Wert. On Friday he speaks at Dayton and on next Monday gives an address at Xenia, which marks the opening of the new state fish hatchery there.

Senator Simon D. Fess, opponent of Truax and candidate for reelection, was to speak at Cleveland today before a luncheon club. Tomorrow night Fess speaks here before the convention of Ohio real estate men. Cadiz on Thursday, Martins Ferry, Friday, and Eaton on Saturday rounds out Senator Fess' week of addresses.

Graham P. Hunt, Cincinnati, Democratic candidate for United States senator, short term, will resume his speaking campaign throughout Ohio tomorrow, after spending the first two days of the week in conference with party leaders in southern Ohio. Hunt speaks at Cleveland on Thursday and Friday, going to Dayton Saturday for a Democratic rally.

Addresses at Troy today, Cleveland tomorrow, Oberlin on Thursday, Ottawa on Friday and Wauson on Saturday are scheduled by Congressman Theodore E. Burton, Cleveland, Hunt's opponent for the short term in the senate.

Harry D. Silver, Ohio Republican campaign manager, arrived in Columbus last night from Cleveland where he had a conference with party leaders. He brought no word back from the northern part of the state, but expressed optimism over the Republican situation there.

BLUE LODGE MASONS MEET IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—More than 1500 members of the grand lodge of Blue Lodge Masons of Ohio were gathered in Columbus today for a three-day convention.

Registration opened at 10 a. m. and the remainder of the morning was spent in committee reports.

District lecturers of the Fourteenth Masonic District will report this afternoon.

Passengers Thirsty But Happy; Plan Official Welcome for Officers; Damage To Fin Is Being Repaired.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 16.—The Graf Zeppelin, her pioneering passenger flight across the Atlantic triumphantly achieved, was moved into the hangar of the naval air station here today.

Five hundred men pulled and pushed her great 770-foot hulk through the towering entrance into position alongside her smaller sister, the Los Angeles.

The Graf Zeppelin was taken inside at 3 a. m., when weather conditions favored the maneuver. She had been moored to the short mast outside since her arrival at 5:40 p. m. yesterday, when she completed a voyage of four days, fifteen hours and forty-eight minutes from Friedrichshafen, Germany.

The Graf Zeppelin thus was in port today, like any ocean liner, awaiting re-fueling, fresh supplies and passengers before starting again across the Atlantic.

Workmen will swarm over her for a week, repairing the big hole in her port stabilizer, torn by a storm at sea, inspecting the hull and engines and reconditioning the world's first ocean passenger air liner for a return trip to Germany.

Meanwhile, her crew of forty and some of her twenty passengers prepared for the reception New York is giving in their honor. Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, and his crew remained at Lakehurst over night. Some of the passengers remained here or at Lakewood, while others went on to New York.

Eckener was a guest of Capt. E. S. Jackson, commander of the Lakehurst station. With his crew, he will go to New York to be taken up the harbor on the yacht Macom and up the lower Broadway canyon to City Hall for the customary New York welcome reserved for distinguished guests.

The story of the Graf Zeppelin's voyage over more than 6,000 miles of land and water, the maiden commercial voyage of a trans-Atlantic air liner, had been told only fragmentarily today by the tired but happy passengers. It had all the interest of a pioneer venture, with a dash of danger averted to heighten the interest.

The first reaction of the passengers was relief to be on land again, desire for a drink of water and for

The chief thrill of the voyage came Friday night in mid-Atlantic southwest of the Azores, when the Graf Zeppelin encountered a small gale. The covering of the port stabilizer, which helps keep the ship on a steady keel, was ripped open by the wind.

One passenger said the ship took a fearsome dip, ducking in the wind, and there was fear among the passengers that she was going to plunge into the Atlantic. The ship was held to an even keel, however, and the speed cut down. Then Knut Eckener, 24, son of the commander, climbed out on the stabilizer with three others of the crew and, clinging to their precarious perch, made fast what remained of the covering to avert further damage and possible disaster.

Dr. Eckener dismissed the ripping of the fin cover as unimportant. The repair work took five hours, from 5 p. m. Friday to 1 a. m. Saturday.

"We had to slow down, as it was impossible to make the repairs going at full speed," Dr. Eckener said. "I had had before me a promise to take this ship across the Atlantic when it was ready. I did that and I believe the trip has been sufficient to demonstrate the possibilities and perfection of the airship."

"We did have a little misfortune on the way. We were in the very center of the Atlantic when we burst the fin cover. Like an ocean ship, we were compelled to slow up for repairs. It was a burst such as we never had before, and never in the future will it happen again."

Eckener said he saw no signs of excitement among the passengers.

DEMOCRATS ACCUSE FOES OF UNSIGNED
'WEI' PROPAGANDA

Brunner Says Act Violates Laws of Campaigns.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—Although charging Republican state campaign headquarters with having violated the law by sending out "unsigned" campaign literature, no legal charges will be filed by Democratic headquarters, according to Henry G. Brunner, chairman of the Democratic executive committee.

The literature in question was campaign leaflets, alleged to have been distributed from republican headquarters here, and which appeal to anti-prohibition voters with the claim that a change in the prohibition laws can be accomplished only through the Republican party of the north.

The leaflets, according to Republican headquarters, were designed for party speakers. They were not being circulated, Harry D. Silver, Republican campaign manager, declared, explaining that persons who obtained copies must have picked them up from a desk at the headquarters.

"It takes a lot of nerve for Republican senatorial candidate, Simon D. Fess to say that all the moral forces in the present campaign are allied with the Republican cause, while at the same time his party's headquarters is permitting distribution of unsigned leaflets which say, in substance, that the Republican party is the place to seek repeal or change in the dry laws," Brunner added.

"This is a direct repudiation of all the appeals to 'moral forces' by Fess, Mabel Walker Willebrandt, religious denomination leaders and the Anti-Saloon League."

SMITH BIDDING FOR MISSOURI; SPEECH ON TUESDAY NIGHT

Expect 50,000 To 100,000
At Party Rally; Joins
In Parade

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 16.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith waved his brown derby today to central Missouri, the dry agriculture district which holds the balance of political power in this doubtful border state.

A morning parade, an afternoon of conferences in an historical old hotel and night speech in a livestock pavilion at the state fair grounds were on the governor's schedule. The five-mile parade will introduce the candidate from the sidewalks of New York to the farmers and citizens of the "show me" state.

The conferences which will be attended by Charles M. Hay, Democratic candidate for senator and county chairman, will organize the final effort of the campaign here. The night speech to be broadcast at 8 p. m. Central Time over a national radio hookup will set forth Smith's views about what he calls "the myth of Republican prosperity."

This little city of 27,000 inhabitants is planning accommodations for 50,000 to 100,000 visitors during the governor's thirty-six hour stay. Special trains are arriving at the two depots every few minutes from throughout Missouri and near-by states.

Smith arrived on his special train from St. Louis yesterday and was paraded to his hotel by marchers with torchlight flares. The crowd hung around outside his hotel shouting for him and he was forced several times to come out on the old style balcony upon which faces his second floor suite.

Smith was sent here by his campaign managers because this is the territory he must win if he is to carry Missouri. His managers are expecting a majority in St. Louis ranging from 20,000 to 40,000. The remainder of the state is considered Republican and to a great extent dry.

A rally of all Democratic state candidates will be held this afternoon at the livestock pavilion.

HOOVER IS PLEASED WITH ENTHUSIASM IN MASSACHUSETTS

Prosperity Is Basis Of Talk; Coolidge Regime
Ideal

ABOARD HERBERT HOOVER'S SPECIAL TRAIN ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Herbert Hoover was returning to Washington today with high hopes that Massachusetts would give him eighteen electoral votes to him as a result of impetus to his campaign by the personal appearances in the Bay state which were so well received.

The Republican presidential candidate, who carries with him from Massachusetts the memory of a day replete with enthusiastic welcome and a hearty response to his address, especially his praise of the Republican protective tariff as the basis of present prosperity and his declaration that the "competitive tariff" plan of his Democratic opponent, Alfred E. Smith, would bring lower wages and out of the farm.

Hoover's campaign took a slightly new direction in Boston both as to personality and method. He discussed the tariff in detail as well as the administration's foreign trade policy, the merchant marine, war debts, and protection of American lives and property abroad.

He told his audience that, if elected, his ideal of an administration would be that of Calvin Coolidge, now drawing to its close.

In urging his audience to send D. Loring Young, Republican candidate opposing Senator David I. Walsh to the senate, Hoover voiced again as he did at Newark, N. J., an appeal for election of a Republican congress.

The leaflets, according to Republican headquarters, were designed for party speakers. They were not being circulated, Harry D. Silver, Republican campaign manager, declared, explaining that persons who obtained copies must have picked them up from a desk at the headquarters.

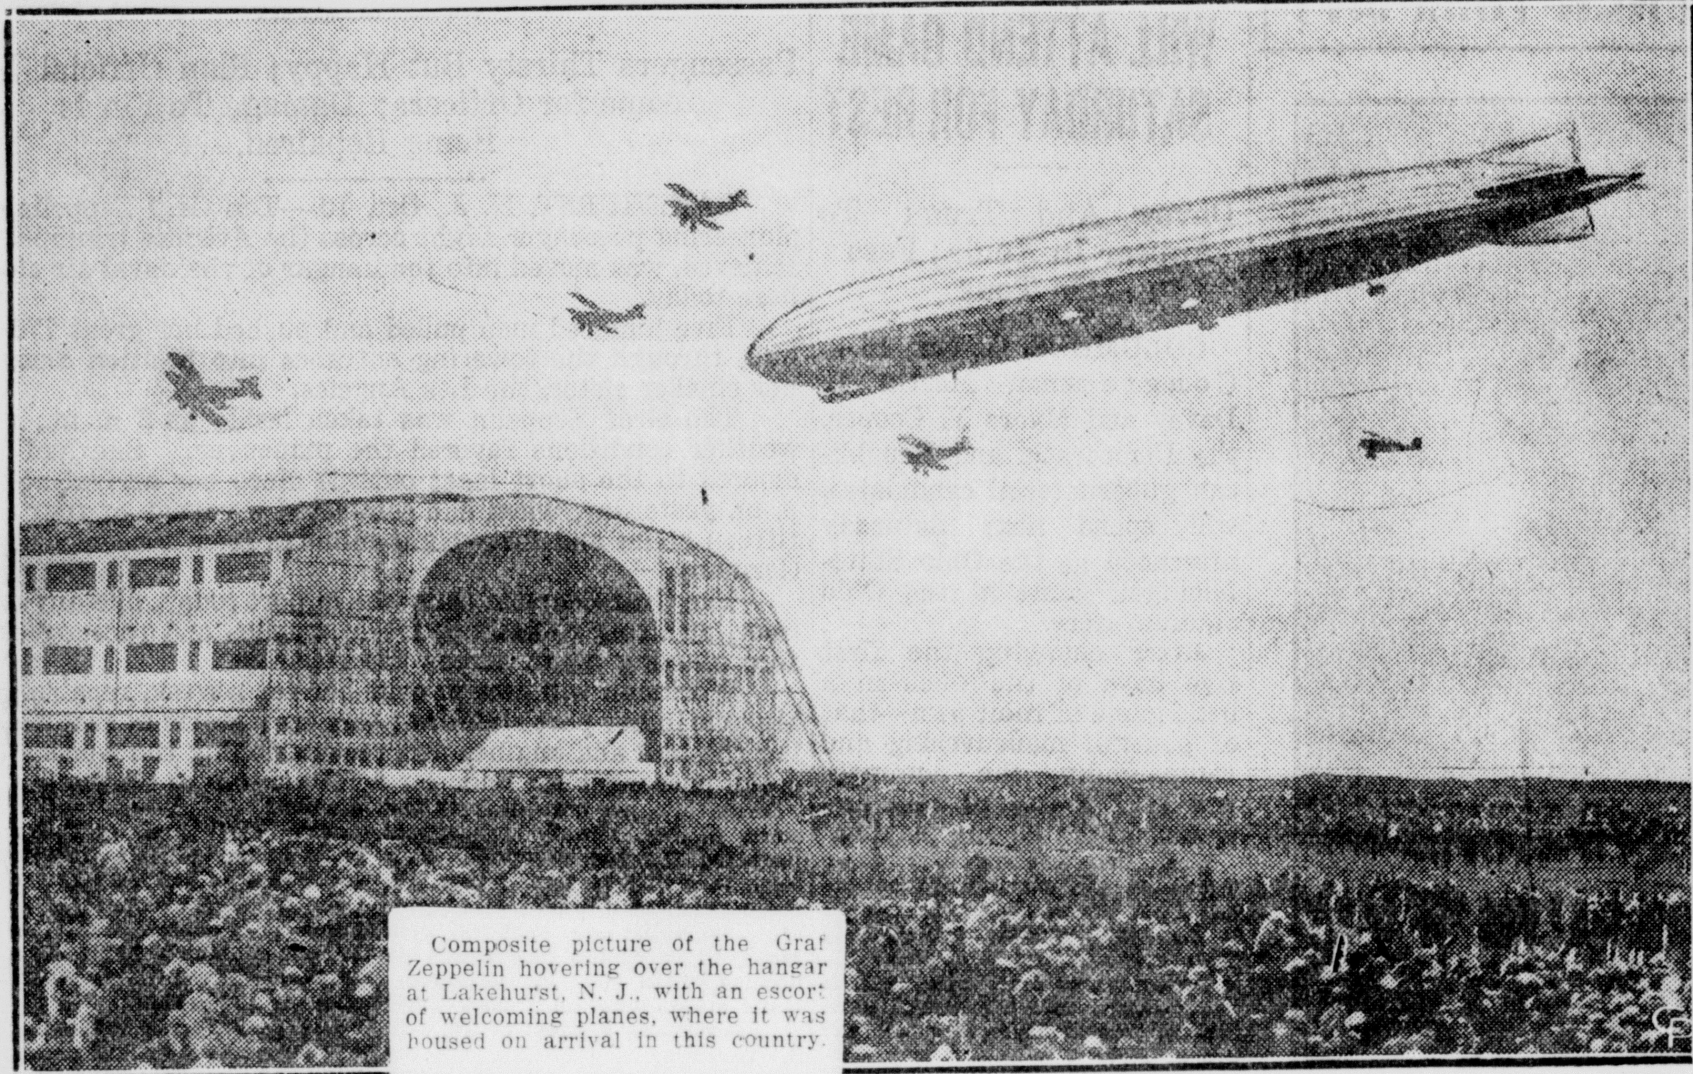

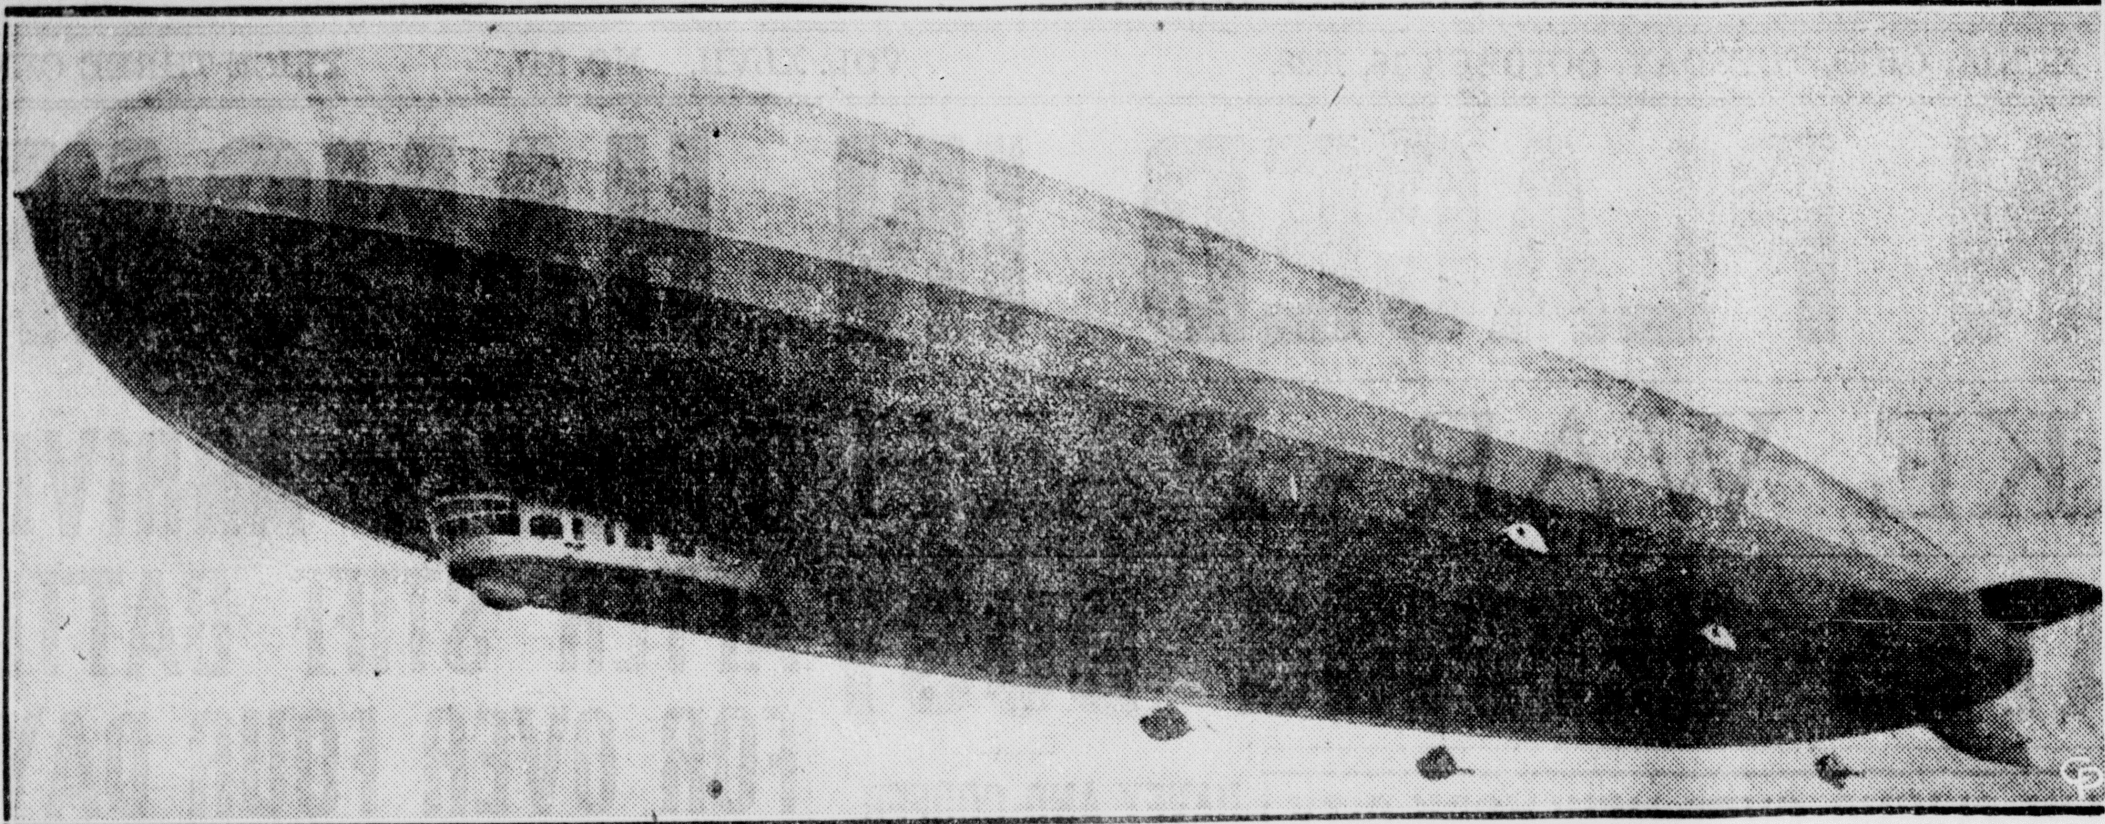

"It takes a lot of nerve for Republican senatorial candidate, Simeon D. Fess, to say that all the moral forces in the present campaign are allied with the Republican cause, while at the same time his party's headquarters is permitting distribution of unsigned leaflets which say, in substance, that the Republican party is the place to seek repeal or change in the dry laws," Brunner added.

"This is a direct repudiation of all the appeals to 'moral forces' by Fess," Mabel Walker Willebrandt, religious denomination leaders and the Anti-Saloon League.

GIRL ADMITS KIDNAPING STORY WAS HOAX TO COVER TARDINESS

Imolee Willis, 11-year-old Jamestown girl, who started authorities on the trail of an alleged kidnaper whom she declared induced her to enter his auto and then carried her six miles out in the country before releasing her the afternoon of October 8, admitted Monday that the story was fictitious.

The confession that she had invented the tale was made in the presence of her parents and Jamestown authorities, when she was confronted with a detailed account of her movements after she had left school that afternoon.

The young girl had clung to her story for a week without flinching. Authorities believe that the child invented the story which she elaborated with many details, in order to escape punishment for her failure to return home until 7 o'clock in the evening. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Willis. Her father is a Jamestown school teacher.

Tracing her movements from the time she left school, authorities learned that the child actually walked more than six miles. She started out the Brick Road, possibly intending to visit her uncle, Benjamin Huddle who lives three miles out on this road, then turned off and returned to the village by way of the Jamestown Pike.

According to the story she related to her parents, she was returning home from school when a stranger persuaded her to enter his auto at a principal street intersection, drove her six miles out in the country and then released her upon learning her name with the statement she was not the girl he was after.

The girl said she walked all the way back home, thus accounting for her late arrival. John Baugh, marshal of the village and former Greene County deputy sheriff, took a leading part in the investigation that followed.

MILK MAY GO UP

COLUMBUS, Oct. 16.—Milk distributing agencies here today were considering raising the price of milk 1 cent a quart. An extended drought has caused a shortage of pasture, they said, and increased feeding costs may make a milk price increase necessary.

DIRIGIBLE ARRIVES AFTER STIFF BATTLE MORE THAN 4 DAYS

at the time of the accident and that when they learned what occurred, "They raised their glasses and drank to the health of everybody."

Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, U. S. N., who is master of the Los Angeles, joined with Eckener in minimizing the reports of alarm among the passengers when the fin cover burst. Rosendahl was a guest aboard the dirigible.

Rosendahl was introduced to reporters by Edward P. Warner, assistant secretary of the navy for aviation. The commander apologized for not discussing the trip freely, explaining that he was a guest and the Zeppelin Company had a contract with newspaper interests "by the terms of which no passenger or crew member is permitted to discuss details of the trip for eight days after the landing."

Rosendahl said he had met with no interference in sending messages to the navy department regarding the ship's position during the voyage. The Graf Zeppelin's reluctance at times to answer ques-ies about her position had led to indignation among naval officers here.

"This is not the ultimate size in dirigibles," Rosendahl said. "They must be bigger and bigger. But we can't leap into the big sizes all at once."

Rosendahl said the Graf Zeppelin was at no time in danger. He explained that when the fin cover burst, he sent a radiogram to the navy asking for vessels to stand by, at the request of Eckener, purely as a precautionary measure. They were not certain of the extent of the storm they had encountered. Ten minutes later he cancelled the request, he added, when the true state of affairs was disclosed.

The general opinion of the passengers regarding the trip appeared to have been favorable. The chief complaint was the hardship of not being able to smoke, and the shortage of drinking water.

Eckener said there was no shortage of food aboard, but several passengers agreed that the water supply almost gave out. Fortunately, plenty of beer, wine and liquors had been put aboard. It was all gone but one bottle when the airship landed.

There was enough food for two days more when the Zeppelin landed, it was said.

Robert Reiner, Weehawken, N. J., textile manufacturer, said he would not make the flight again.

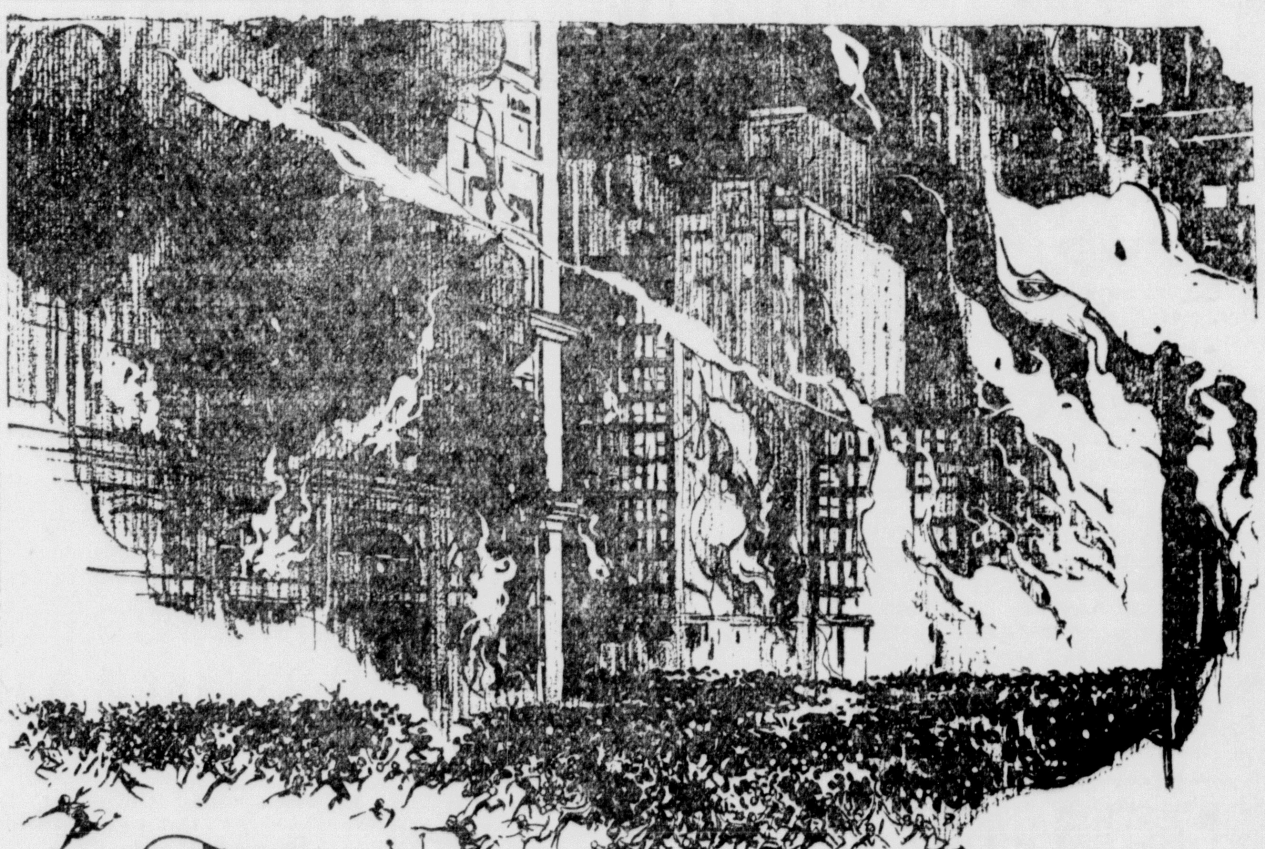

"I would say from my experience on this trip," he explained, "that the dirigible is ideal for trans-Atlantic commerce. Passenger traffic aboard the big airships, however, I do not believe to be practical."

The passengers were all in good humor when they landed. They said all had enjoyed the trip. They played cards, chess and other games, and never tired of watching the vast panorama of sky, ocean and landscape as they passed over various countries, islands and the ocean.

The date of the Zeppelin's return to Germany was still to be determined today. It was estimated it would take ten days to repair the damaged fin and do other necessary work.

The dirigible set a record for carrying such a number of people—sixty—across the ocean by air. Her distance traversed, more than 6,000 miles, is a record for non-stop distance flying, although the French Dirigible Dismude (also a Zeppelin product), spent a longer time in the air on a sustained flight.

The Graf Zeppelin's time across the ocean was exceeded by both the Los Angeles and the British R-34, which made a return trip. The Los Angeles, built for the United States by Germany as part of her war obligations, crossed from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst in 1924 in eighty-one hours. The Los Angeles had better weather and took a shorter route, flying only 4,010 miles in an airline.

THE SAFETY OF YOUR HOME IS MEASURED BY THE SAFETY OF YOUR TOWN

Your own carefulness in safeguarding home, factory, store or other property against fire is a solemn duty, but it is not enough.

No matter how careful you may be, a bad condition in adjacent or even distant property may undo all your own efforts. Cities must be made safer. It is a civic as well as a personal obligation.

Here is where the Stock Fire Insurance companies—constituting the National Board of Fire Underwriters—have rendered a conspicuous service. Their skilled engineers work unceasingly to make American cities safer.

These engineers have systematically surveyed more than 400 cities, many of them several times. The improvements in water supply, fire alarm systems, fire departments and safety ordinances have been of great public benefit and a decided factor in the consistent rate reductions shown by Stock Fire Insurance.

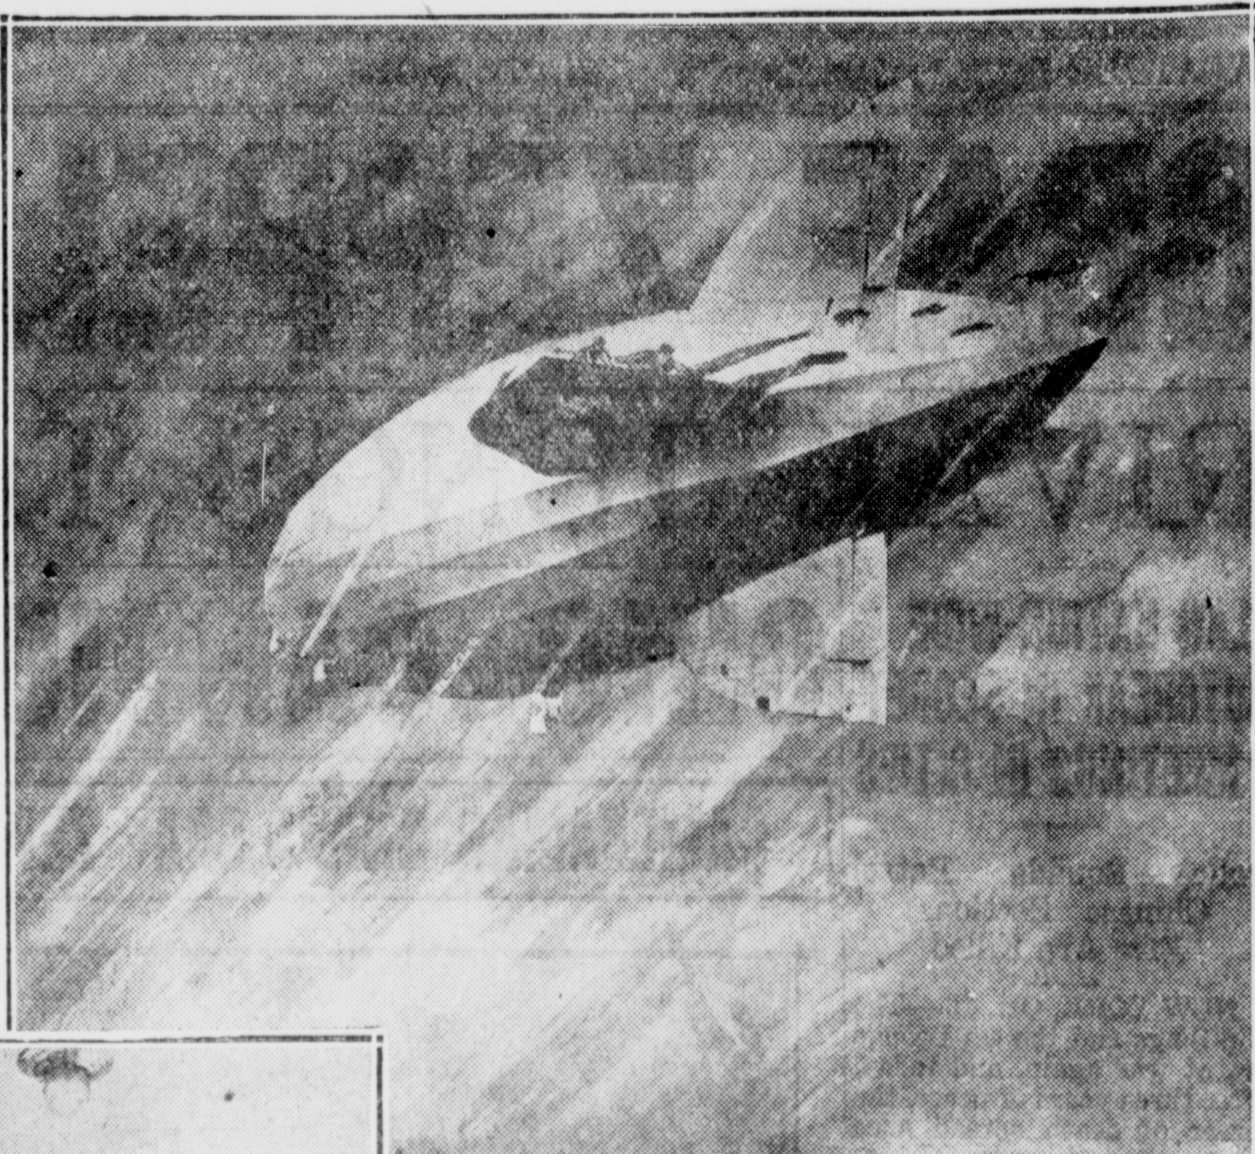

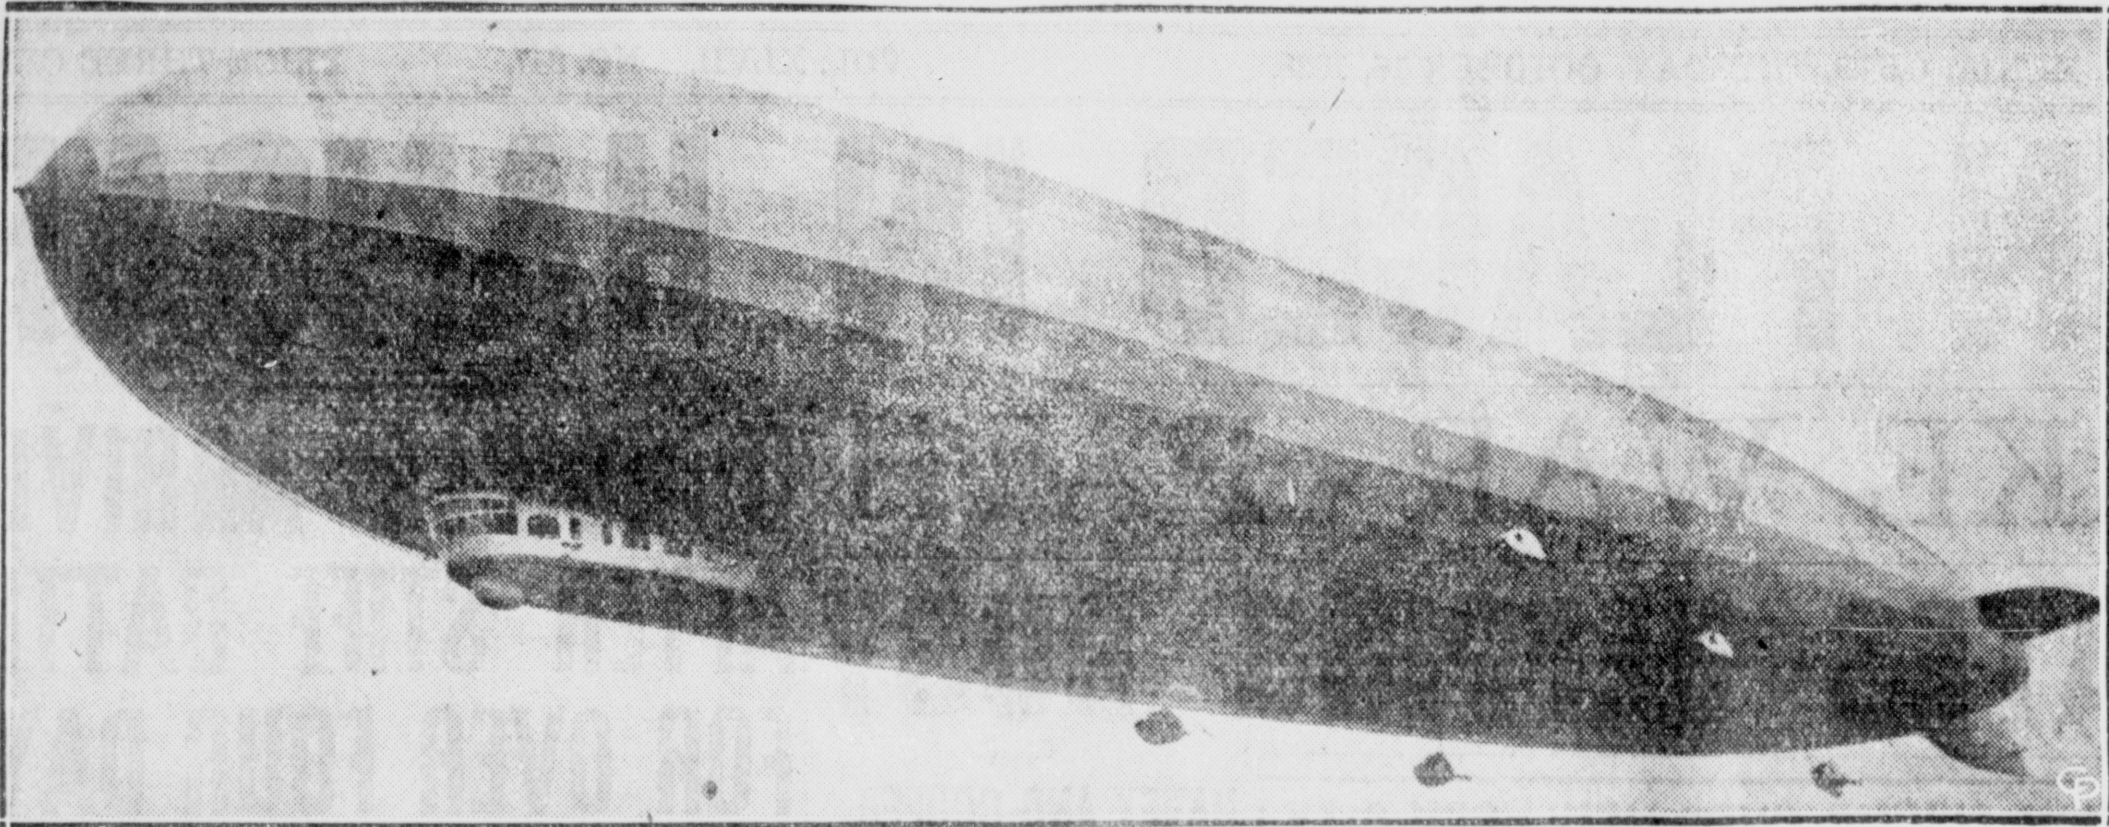

New hazards, growing out of new inventions and processes, call for prompt engineering treatment. These engineers are always on the alert to provide the necessary measures.

FIRST M. E. YOUNG PEOPLE ENTERTAINED.

Young people of the First M. E. Church, between the ages of fourteen and twenty-five, were entertained by the Sunday School Board, at dinner, Monday evening, in the church basement.

About fifty young people were present. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Carey M. Young, Mansfield, O., organizer of young people of the state. He spoke of the needs of better organized Sunday Schools and of classes being organized.

"Young people do not know how to worship and have no idea of God," he said. "Why is it that they do not study their lessons for Sunday School as they do for public school? I feel that the public school is taking too much of their time and does not leave enough time for their religious education."

"They should have an idea of how to worship so that they will be better prepared when they are older. My idea of a Sunday School would be to give examinations and promote the pupils and make them 'dig' to get promoted. A teacher should be careful in the method they use in teaching. The method of lecture does not go with young people."

"Topic research work is a far better method. Teach them about the early church, the social affairs of the church and how they worshipped then. Give the young people a place in the Sunday School, make them feel a responsibility. They should have high ideals, of how to attain new experiences, new ideas, and new experiences. Let them take part in home missionary work and they will become more interested in foreign missions."

Mr. Young's talk was well received by the assembly. Mr. George D. Durnbaugh, president of the County Council of Religious Education was also present and gave a short talk, as did Mr. J. Harry Nagley.

Mrs. R. D. Adair, Mrs. Findlay M. Torrence, Mrs. E. H. Heathman and Mrs. C. L. Darlington, Sr., were Mrs. Hale's prize winners. The clubhouse was gay with a myriad of late summer flowers.

Mrs. L. K. Sone, New York City, Mrs. Hale's sister, was the only out-of-town guest.

GUY HUTSLAR SELLS INTEREST IN ARROW SHOE COMPANY HERE

Guy R. Hutslar, partner in the organization of the Arrow Shoe Co., S. Detroit St., has sold his interest in the business to Adolph Moser, senior partner in the firm.

Dissolution of the partnership was announced Tuesday and Mr. Hutslar is leaving the business immediately to become associated with O. F. Miller, Springfield, in the advertising business.

The Arrow Shoe Co. will continue to be operated by Mr. Moser, whose store, known as Moser's shoe store, was the predecessor of the business under its present name. No change in the operation of the store is contemplated and it will be continued under present policies.

Mr. Hutslar will resign his position as secretary of the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, because his new interests will keep him out of the city much of the time, but will continue to make his home in Xenia.

He came to Xenia from Springfield three years ago last July as an employee of the Moser store and assumed a partnership when the Arrow Shoe Co. was organized in June, 1921. He was in the shoe business in Springfield for a number of years and was also active in the advertising business which he will resume with his new connection.

Mr. Moser came here to purchase the Koch Sample Shoe Store twenty years ago, and operated it for four years in its location in the Gallagher Bldg., now the Post Bldg. He moved to his present location sixteen years ago and the business was operated under his own name until the Arrow company was formed last year.

In his new business connection Mr. Hutslar will be associated with Mr. Miller in the publication of rural directories. Because of his connection with the merchants association he has taken an active part in many community and civic affairs.

BEAVER HIGH PLANS ANNUAL FALL FAIR THURSDAY, FRIDAY

The fifth annual Beaver Fall Fair will be held at the Knights of Pythias Hall in Alpha Thursday and Friday nights, October 18 and 19.

The Beaver Fall Fair has become an annual event in Beaver Creek Township High School and is directed by the Smith-Hughes agriculture department of that school. During the past few years the number of exhibits has increased and the attendance has become so large that it was necessary to secure additional room. This year the Knights of Pythias Lodge has offered the second floor of the lodge building to be used for exhibits. This means that seats may be placed on the main floor so that the programs may be more comfortably enjoyed.

All kinds of farm products may be entered for exhibit and substantial prizes are given in all classes. This year for the first time, entries will not be limited to residents of Beaver Creek Twp. Classes will be open to anyone who may be interested in entering any product.

In addition to the regular money prizes for each variety of corn the sweepstakes entry will receive a hatchet, donated by Babbs' hardware store. Also 250 ears of corn will be tested for germination free of charge by the Smith-Hughes department. The reserve champion corn will also receive 250 ears of corn tested free of charge next spring. Other classes provide for prizes in grains, fruits, vegetables, baked goods, needle work, flowers, and school lunch.

Keen interest has been shown in the past by the various districts of the grade schools of the township and very substantial prizes are being offered again this year to the school districts.

Good programs have been prepared for each night of the fair. Refreshment stands and side shows will furnish refreshments and amusements during the evening. The Alpha Seed and Grain Co. has offered a sack of scratch grain to be given to the person who guesses nearest to the number of grains of corn a drake will eat between 9:00 and 10:00 on Friday evening.

HOOVER ALPHABET

By Mabel F. Martin

INTEGRITY

Hoover Bears a Name Above Reproach

Not one figure of the Peace Conference, but many, called him the single statesman of the war period who came out of the struggle with untarnished credit. Elements in Europe that would trust neither government nor official nor commission, trusted Herbert Hoover. When, after the war, the auditors closed up a sales-and-purchase account of $928,000,000, they added a voluntary statement that Hoover had never himself drawn a cent from these funds for any purpose whatsoever. To the Government of Paris the auditor submitted this enormous account for final scrutiny and approval. The French waved it aside. "We have tasks more pressing and fruitful," they said, "than questioning the integrity of Mr. Hoover."

This quotation from Will Irwin's reminiscent biography shows something of Hoover's spotless integrity. Hoover's record, both in public and in private life, proves that he is a man to be trusted with the grave responsibility of the Presidency of the United States.

Young people of the First M. E. church, between the ages of fourteen and twenty-five, were entertained by the Sunday School Board, at dinner, Monday evening, in the church basement.

About fifty young people were present. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Carey M. Young, Mansfield, O., organizer of young people of the state. He spoke of the needs of better organized Sunday Schools and of classes being organized.

Young people do not know how to worship and have no idea of God," he said. "Why is it that they do not study their lessons for Sunday School as they do for public school. I feel that the public school is taking too much of their time and does not leave enough time for their religious education."

"They should have an idea of how to worship so that they will be better prepared when they are older. My idea of a Sunday School would be to give examinations and promote the pupils and make them 'dig' to get promoted. A teacher should be careful in the method they use in teaching. The method of lecture does not go with young people."

Topic research work is a far better method. Teach them about the early church, the social affairs of the church and how they worshipped then. Give the young people a place in the Sunday School, make them feel a responsibility.

"They should have high ideals, of how to attain new discoveries, new ideas, and new experiences with God. Let them take part in home missionary work and they will become more interested in foreign missions."

Mr. Young's talk was well received by the assembly. Mr. George D. Durnbaugh, president of the County Council of Religious Education was also present and gave a short talk, as did Mr. J. Harry Nagley.

Bilious child suffers agony.

No more headaches and sickness.

Save your child from splitting headache and prostrating sickness. If the tongue is coated and breath unpleasant, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with constipated waste. Simply give a dose of "California Fig Syrup," and shortly after all the sour, irritating bile and fermenting undigested food will be moved from the bowels, leaving the system clean and sweet, and the child bright and strong.

"California Fig Syrup" suits child's system better than any harsh purging medicine, and they love its delicious taste.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup. To be sure of getting the genuine, look for the name "California" on the package.

GUY HUTSLAR SELLS INTEREST IN ARROW SHOE COMPANY HERE

Guy R. Hutslar, partner in the organization of the Arrow Shoe Co., S. Detroit St., has sold his interest in the business to Adolph Moser, senior partner in the firm.

Dissolution of the partnership was announced Tuesday and Mr. Hutslar is leaving the business immediately to become associated with O. F. Miller, Springfield, in the advertising business.

The Arrow Shoe Co. will continue to be operated by Mr. Moser, whose store, known as Moser's shoe store, was the predecessor of the business under its present name. No change in the operation of the store is contemplated and it will be continued under present policies.

Mr. Hutslar will resign his position as secretary of the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, because his new interests will keep him out of the city much of the time, but will continue to make his home in Xenia. He came to Xenia from Springfield three years ago last July as an employee of the Moser store and assumed a partnership when the Arrow Shoe Co. was organized in June, 1927. He was in the shoe business in Springfield for a number of years and was also active in the advertising business which he will resume with his new connection.

Mr. Moser came here to purchase the Koch Sample Shoe Store twenty years ago, and operated it for four years in its location in the Gallagher Bldg., now the Foust Bldg. He moved to his present location sixteen years ago and the business was operated under his own name until the Arrow company was formed last year.

In a new business connection Mr. Hutslar will be associated with Mr. Miller in the publication of rural directories. Because of his connection with the merchants association he has taken an active part in many community and civic affairs.

BEAVER HIGH PLANS ANNUAL FALL FAIR THURSDAY, FRIDAY

The fifth annual Beaver Fall Fair will be held at the Knights of Pythias Hall in Alpha Thursday and Friday nights, October 18 and 19.

The Beaver Fall Fair has become an annual event in Beaver Creek Township High School and is directed by the Smith-Hughes agriculture department of that school. During the past few years the number of exhibits has increased and the attendance has become so large that it was necessary to secure additional room. This year the Knights of Pythias Lodge has offered the second floor of the lodge building to be used for exhibits. This means that seats may be placed on the main floor so that the programs may be more comfortably enjoyed.

All kinds of farm products may be entered for exhibit and substantial prizes are given in all classes. This year for the first time, entries will not be limited to residents of Beaver Creek Twp. Classes will be open to anyone who may be interested in entering any product.

In addition to the regular money prizes for each variety of corn the sweepstakes entry will receive a hatchet, donated by Babbs' hardware store. Also 250 ears of corn will be tested for germination free of charge by the Smith-Hughes department. The reserve champion corn will also receive 250 ears of corn tested free of charge next spring. Other classes provide for prizes in grains, fruits, vegetables, baked goods, needle work, flowers, and school lunch.

Keen interest has been shown in the past by the various districts of the grade schools of the township and very substantial prizes are being offered again this year to the school districts.

Good programs have been prepared for each night of the fair. Refreshment stands and side shows will furnish refreshments and amusements during the evening. The Alpha Seed and Grain Co. has offered a sack of scratch grain to be given to the person who guesses nearest to the number of grains of corn a drake will eat between 9:00 and 10:00 on Friday evening.

HOOVER ALPHABET

INTEGRITY

Hoover Bears a Name Above Reproach

Not one figure of the Peace Conference, but many, called him the single statesman of the war period who came out of the struggle with untarnished credit. Elements in Europe that would trust neither government nor official nor commission, trusted Herbert Hoover. When, after the war, the auditors closed up a sales-and-purchase account of $928,000,000, they added a voluntary statement that Hoover had never himself drawn a cent from these funds for any purpose whatsoever. To the Government of Paris the auditor submitted this enormous account for final scrutiny and approval. The French waved it aside. "We have tasks more pressing and fruitful," they said, "than questioning the integrity of Mr. Hoover."

This quotation from Will Irwin's reminiscent biography shows something of Hoover's spotless integrity. Hoover's record, both in public and in private life, proves that he is a man to be trusted with the grave responsibility of the Presidency of the United States.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUR SHELTER—For thou, Lord, hast been a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his distress, a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat, when the blast of the terrible ones is as a storm against the wall.—Isa. 25:4.

AVOIDING UNEMPLOYMENT

An over-supply or under-demand of labor will cause unemployment, and under-employment will cause wages to fall. When men are out of work they cannot indefinitely stand out for peak wages. They take someone's job at less money. There are two chief dangers to be guarded against. One is that a flood of foreign labor might immigrate to America, and thus cause an over-supply, and the other is that goods made by foreign labor might destroy the employer's sales of the products of his workmen in the home market. The Republican Administration of 1920-1924 guarded against these two dangers by restricting immigration, and by protective tariff.

Both of those two dangers were extraordinarily threatening 1924 because post-war industrial conditions in Russia, Germany and Central Europe—the Near East and, in fact, even in England—would probably have caused a dangerously large rush of emigrants to America, were such a movement not severely checked and except for the efficient Protective Tariff, European producers would undoubtedly have been able to under-sell (as they did in 1920) practically every American product in the home market.

The difference between the Republican and Democratic Tariff policies, is the same difference that exists between an American "Protective" Tariff and the Low Revenue Tariff policy of Great Britain, and since these two countries are great manufacturing rivals, it is reasonable to examine the actual results to manufacturing and labor of the respective systems during normal economic pre-war years.

The "Free Trade" system of Great Britain rewards its industries for living abroad and supporting competing nations, and penalizes them for staying at home and helping to defend and support their own country.

PRIDE IN VOTING

It should be with a thrill that the young man or woman registers his or her name for the first time for voting. Young people may well have sentiment of pride in taking on their share of the work of governing the country.

The ballot is a priceless possession. It has cost us an infinite amount, not merely in the struggles of our ancestors, but in the efforts of men and women who for ages have fought against kings and tyrants to demolish democracy.

The ballot does not necessarily give freedom or good government. All over the world are nations where people have the ballot, but they do not know how to use it, and their representative government is a farce and a sham. Friday and Saturday are the last registration days for 1928. All who expect to vote on November 6 must register this year regardless of previous registration.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

SAFER FLYING

Somebody comments on the increasing number of accidents to fliers. As a matter of fact flying becomes safer. Planes are made better, more dependable. The number of accidents, of course, is accounted for by the tremendously increased number of fliers within the last year or two. In California an airplane is exhibited which will be safe even though the engine stalls. Speed and utility have been taken care of. The element of safety will come next.

ELASTIC TYPE

Horace Carr, Cleveland artist-printer, has realized the dream of newspaper headline writers. He has invented elastic type. If this should become practical it might mean that no longer would the newspaper copy reader be forced to write that separate and distinct language known as "headlines."

COAL

Notwithstanding the increased use of oil for fuel, don't despise the lowly coal. There will soon be a coal conference in Pittsburgh which will consider the uses of coal from every angle. Perfumes, drugs, chemicals, laboratory experiments will all enter into the discussion. Coal is vastly more than fuel. In it are the makings of a great variety of products. We aren't through with coal. Perhaps we are just beginning to know what to do with it.

INSANITY

A North Dakota farmer whose wife had become insane was questioned. He could not understand why his wife should be insane, he said. She had not been subjected to any excitement. "Why, for 40 years," he said, "she hasn't been out of her backyard or her kitchen." It's not speed that brings insanity. It's not excitement, so much as it is monotony. You who think you are busy and hurried and have too much to do may be glad of it when you think of those hungering souls in the far corners of the country who haven't been out of their doorways and their kitchens in 40 years.

FAME

Fame is sharp pointed at the peak. The seats are more comfortable a little further down the slopes toward obscurity. If you don't believe it ask Francis X. Bushman, once the best known and most popular of male movie stars. Bushman is said to be coming back in popularity. For a time after the peak of his fame he was in comparative obscurity. Once he used to create a traffic jam when he took a walk. Looking back over his record he says it's more comfortable not to be so popular. That should all of us who are not likely to get far above the line of mediocrity.

NEWS COMMENT and VIEWS

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK — At last New York is becoming excited about politics. As in other parts of the country, party lines are being broken.

Pity the poor old regulars among the voters, with the Republican Sun supporting Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat, for governor, over Attorney General Albert Ottinger, Republican. The Sun is supporting Herbert Hoover for president. As in the Telegram, but, like the Sun, it is for Roosevelt for governor.

Franklin D. Roosevelt is not to be confused with Theodore Roosevelt, son of the late president, who ran on the Republican ticket against Smith for governor, and was defeated. Franklin D. is of a different branch of the family.

New York politicians say there is a "whispering" campaign on upstate. As one paper puts it, the "whisperers" are said to be against Smith because he is a Catholic, and Ottinger because he is a Jew. But I don't place much credence in it. For Colonel Herbert H. Lehman, whom the Democrats nominated for lieutenant governor, also is a Jew. These assertions merely denote that New York City at last realizes there is a political campaign on. But it took the state conventions to convince this city, which doesn't see much beyond the Hudson.

Obscene plays will be rarer on the Broadway stages. Mae West's most recent experience with her "Pleasure Man" indicates that.

The new law against obscene plays is proved workable. Mae, who is acting in another play of her own authorship (and is enormously successful at it), insists "Pleasure Man" had a moral. But police couldn't see it that way.

That town's literary lights are, as usual, excited over the possibilities of police censorship. Police in the past have closed plays that afterwards were proved to be near-masterpieces.

The consensus is that Mae West has strengthened the case of the police and censorship. Which means that plays this season will toe the mark.

A play reviewer told me last night that of fourteen plays he had seen of the new season's crop not one had aroused an emotion within his breast. Not only are plays at a dead level, but many theaters remain closed.

Even though a few really good plays have trickled through, the mere incident of police raiding Mae West's "Pleasure Man" has furnished the only actual excitement of the present Broadway season.

I fear that Gene Tunney is the most heartily disliked man today in New York newspaper offices. I saw the executive of the photographic branch of one of the largest papers grit his teeth and pound the desk and growl invectives when he heard that the retiring heavyweight champ smashed all cameras (or had police do it) at his wedding to Polly Lauder.

If Tunney ever does sink into obscurity, he'll have to crawl on his hands and knees after cameramen if he desires any pictures taken. At that, the photographic folk would give their souls (at the present time) for a few intimate shots of him with Polly.

I suppose the home folks are back from the world series games in New York. If so, they can tell you none of the natives worked. New York is more small town than any small town I know.

You can get the time of day in New York by paying five cents and calling the telephone bureau of the New York Telephone company. When daylight saving ended there were 65,120 calls and the toll was $3,256.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

How's this for hokum? The head of a company employing several scores of salesmen dealing with farmers used to tell his men:

"If you go to a farm and they have a dog, don't delay a moment in the dog's name, and don't forget it. The next time you come, be sure to call that dog by name. If it's a good dog, or a pretty dog, say so. Find out the names of the children, too. And see that the children know your name. It is almost impossible to have anything but friendly relations with a caller who knows your dog and children by name and who is personally known by name to the children."

TOO FAMILIAR

The pupils had a favorite teacher, as they do at all schools.

One of the children was a little girl, born of foreign parents, and she had a wholesome respect for this particular teacher. She persisted, however, in referring to her as Mrs. Smith.

"Why," asked one of the other pupils, "don't you call her Miss Smith? She isn't married."

"Oh," replied the girl, "I wouldn't dare do that. You see, I don't know her well enough."

PROMISES

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Pacifism can take forms which I consider queer.

The principle is all right, I do believe. Also I believe that the excuses which governments give, for taking up arms, almost always are the bunk. I believe further that the expression "defensive warfare" is as nearly pure as purity can be.

But a thing like the Ford peace expedition—I really think that was a little eccentric, to say the least.

Any normal individual who went on that pilgrimage, as I did, among the newspaper correspondents, will agree with me, I feel sure.

Admitting that it was a queer expedition, it seems to me it follows, as a matter of course, that the person who thought up the idea, and sold it to Henry Ford, was queer, too—not necessarily queer in all respects, but so pronounced a pacifist, as to be termed a visionary on that subject at least, without exaggeration.

However, is Mme. Schwimmer queer enough to be deemed ineligible for American citizenship? Federal Judge George A. Carpenter says she is.

Rosika applied to him for naturalization, in Chicago, quite a long time ago. The judge, recalling the Ford peace expedition, asked her if she thought war justifiable under any circumstances. Mme. Schwimmer answered that she positively did not. Whereupon her application was turned down.

Rosika appealed. The court of appeals pooh-poohed what it called Judge Carpenter's "trick question" and ordered her naturalized.

CARE OF THE CHILD'S HANDS AND FEET

Hands and feet all come into consideration during the period when the child is past infancy and quickly going forward into little boy or little girlhood.

Nails at this time become quite a problem. The child's nails are quite soft, and they must be taken care of regularly or they will break, split, develop hang-nails and become a menace to the comfort and happiness of the child. Do not attempt to use a file on the child's nails. They are entirely too soft to make this anything but a painful experiment. Manicure once a week, but make it a very simple manicure, cutting the nails not too short, and straight across with a small manicure scissors. Avoid cutting down into the corners, for nails grow into the child that persistent cutting this way develops a tendency towards ingrown nails. Attend, in the same way, to the child's feet. You can also, with an orange stick dipped in cotton and moistened with a little cuticle cream, push back the cuticle from the base of the nails. You must be very gentle about this, and I suggest that you make it something of a game so that the child learns not to neglect and not to complain about his manure.

Watch your child at this stage for the development of habits. The thumb sucking habit, which is not only a menace to health but to beauty, frequently springs into being at this period. Teach your child to keep his fingers away from his face.

Correct shoes are another important consideration to the child now. Beauty, as we know it today, is not only a matter of a pretty skin—it is perfection in every detail. And not the least of these details is the shape of the foot. Neither girl nor boy is going to start out in life with the armor of health that he or she needs if years of neglect have resulted in broken down arches, crooked toes or the corns and bunions which usually have their inception in early childhood. Never try to save money on your child's feet. Economize, by all means, on clothes, even on underwear, rather than footwear. It is not a cosmetic matter to the baby that his little suits are of linen or that his socks are of silk, but it is of tremendous importance that his feet are comfortable. Select wide, nature-shaped shoes and get them to fit the baby when you are buying them. Don't figure that in three months he will grow into a large shoe. If it is a normal, active boy or girl we are dealing with, the shoes will be quite worn out in three months, and it may be three months of torture if the sensitive little feet are slipping

Carrot and Tomato Salad — Core medium size tomatoes. Chop or grind five or six carrots fine, and mix with Thousand Island dressing. Stuff tomato with the mixture, serve on lettuce leaf and garnish with sprig of parsley.

Stuffed Pork Birds — Have butcher insert pocket in double pork chop. If pocket is cut between bone there will be no need to sew opening, because bone will hold dressing in place. The following dressing is very tasty and different: One cup stale bread moistened with little milk, three-fourths cup seedless raisins these can be left out if desired), one-half cup apples chopped fine or ground, one-half cup almond blanched, two eggs, a pinch of salt and pepper. Mix bread and eggs together thoroughly, add apples, raisins, nuts and seasoning. Stuff into pork chops and bake in moderate oven about one hour. If any of the dressing is left over after pork chops have been stuffed, roll into loaf and bake also. This is very good with gravy.

Banana Whip — Mash two large bananas with fork and dice one-fourth pound marshmallows. Mix well and add one orange diced finely, one cup dried pineapple, one-half cup of whipped cream and one-half cup chopped peanuts. Whip all together for about five minutes and serve with either orange sauce or whipped cream. Save some peanuts for the top.

around in shoes that are too big. Socks and stockings, too, are also very important, for no matter how well fitting the shoe is, if the child's socks are wrinkled, the little feet are going to show blisters and other irritations which are harmful and painful in the extreme. If, as not infrequently happens, the child is an in-between size in socks, be sure that the heel of the foot is smoothed down and any extra fullness comes at the toe. I know just how this sounds, but I also know that it is a good, sound fact, for almost every shoe will be a little large at the toe. It will fit correctly at the heel, and there is no space there for a wrinkle or extra fullness—not if the child is to be comfortable.

Slight Blueness in Eyeballs Of Baby Is Perfectly Normal Answers to Mothers.

God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers. — Jewish Proverb.

Bluish Eyeballs. "I am raising my first baby and it seems to me I am constantly beset with superstitions. The worst and most frightening is that concerning blue eyeballs. My baby has them, and my mother-in-law tells me it indicates that the child will have spasms."

"MRS. S." The sclera (the white part of the eye) in children is not infrequently bluer than an adult's, because it is thinner and allows the color of the part underneath, which is very full of fine blood vessels, to show through. This condition does not signify that the child will have spasms, or anything else for that matter. In other words, a slight blueness is normal.

Children may sometimes have spasms from such causes because their nerve tissues are not fully developed. (Naturally a physician should be consulted to be sure they are not caused by anything serious.)

We have a list of modern books on the care and feeding of children which you may have, Mrs. S. See directions for obtaining this.

Diet and Fertility.

"Two years ago I weighed 225 pounds and I am but 5 ft. 2 in. tall, so you can imagine how I looked. Today, by following your instructions, I weigh but 135, a loss of 90 pounds. I look and feel, as you must know, a different person. I had female troubles so badly when I was overweight that the doctor said I never could have children. But today I am a mother of a lovely baby girl. So you see what results I received by reducing. I can thank you for this, Dr. Lulu. More power to you."

"MRS. D." I am glad to run a letter such as Mrs. D's because I know it is more effective in making converts to the ideal of normal weight than all the admonitions I could give. I have quite a number of similar letters. Women who had despaired of becoming mothers and were greatly saddened by it, have borne children after the excess weight was lost.

It has long been known that over-weight seems to be frequently accompanied by sterility, both in the woman and man. In the last few years, through scientific work in nutrition that has been done through animal experimentation, it has been found that there is a definite relationship between fertility and proper nutrition.

There seems to be necessary a definite vitamin for fertility which has been named vitamin E, although the deficiency of the other vitamins will definitely affect it. The unbalanced diet which brings on overweight, the excess of fat, starches and sugars which the overweight invariably indulges in, makes an unbalance of the vitamins even though they are being taken.

So far, experiments show that the vitamin E is present in high concentration in wheat germ oil. (I haven't seen any report of this being on the market yet.) But it is also present in lettuce, lean meat and many other foods.

Thank you, Mrs. D., for letting us know your good results. The instructions Mrs. D. followed are contained in a booklet on the subject. For those who are interested, we have also the article on diet in pregnancy and nursing and a list of books on post and pre-natal care.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Is It Fair To Older Women for Man To Marry for Money?

If you are a young bachelor and in debt, and had a chance to wed a well-to-do widow much older, would you do it? Of course, if you are in love with her you would, but would the removal of the financial worry compensate you for your loss of freedom and feeling of obligation? Would it be fair to the woman? Would it be a good sporting proposition for both? Two letters have come from a young man who has this problem to solve and asks our advice, the first:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young man 31 years of age. I am considerably in debt, though no fault of my own, and my financial prospects are not good. I know a widow who is 47—16 years my senior. She is well to do. I have reason to think that she would marry me if I asked her. I honor and respect her, but I certainly do not 'love' her. Should we marry? I think we could live harmoniously together, but I will admit that if we were not for financial matters I would prefer to remain a bachelor. What do you think?" "ANXIOUS."

The second: "Dear Mrs. Lee: Help! help! that widow has proposed to me. What shall I do? I put her off, but I can't put her off forever. I need that money. What shall I say?" "ANXIOUS."

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

WATER-BIRD WITH NO USE FOR LAND-LUBBERS

"Mrs. Darter scorned Cormorant's greeting and hissed with scorn at what she considered his ignorance in regard to Darter customs. 'Don't flatter yourself,' said she. 'I have never swam after any Cormorant yet and I don't think that I ever shall. I did not come to see you at all, but to fetch my husband home. One of the children slipped from the branch on which he was perching and twisted his right wing. Poor baby fell into the water, but I managed to fish him out—he is too small to swim far yet, you know—and bound up his wing with a reed. I don't know as much about such matters, though, as Mr. Darter. I wanted him to come and see if I had done it right.'"

"However, I see husband has already gone, and as he is swimming in that direction, I suppose he is homebound."

"He is; he heard you scream," explained Cormorant, "and he left at once. He didn't even wait to say goodbye."

"Of course, he didn't. I will say this much for Darter, he is a good husband and father," declared Mrs. Darter, proudly. "But I am wasting my time talking to you. I must follow him. Only I do wish that you would answer my question. Have you any respect for birds that are afraid of the water?"

"Of course I have," Cormorant was quite decided about it. "How could a bird like the water if he had never been near it, and lots of feathered folk are born and live most of their lives in the depths of the forests? The only time they see the waves is when they cross them on their twice-a-year travels. I have met some very fine land birds on my journey. In fact, I don't like to stay in the water too long at a time myself. I—"

"Here wait a moment. What is your hurry, Mrs. Darter?"

Sorry I could not answer before, but letters must be answered as nearly as possible in turn. I cannot see mortgaging your whole future for the sake of help in paying off your debts. If you loved the woman dearly, the difference in ages would not matter so much, although it is a good deal. But to marry her knowing you do not love her, and expecting her to pay your debts seems to me a distinctly bad bargain for her and not sporting of you. How do you know she'll pay your debts when you have married her? How are you going to feel being dependent on a woman for money? The very fact that she took matters into her own hands and did the proposing argues that she is the managing type. Are you willing to be managed all the rest of your life? If you marry her you will not be free to pay attention to girls of your own set and probably have to do more or less what your wife says. Besides you will incur the dislike of your acquaintances who will guess the reason you married her. Better work your way out of your difficulties. You will be happier in the end, and so will she, for a woman is getting herself into a lot of trouble marrying a man so much younger. She will know you don't love her—you cannot keep it from her, and she will naturally be jealous of any girls you may meet. Have courage and say no, and I know you will be glad of it always.

"Mrs. Darter had dropped into the water and was now swimming after her husband, who by this time had reached the stump where they lived and was wriggling out of the water towards the nest. The lady paid no attention to Cormorant's cry to come back, other than to hasten her pace. She did, however, twist about her snaky neck and call a scornful goodbye over her shoulder."

"Come and see us some time," Cormorant do; but I must ask you not to talk so much about the land birds. Neither husband nor I have any use for them—we think they are "up in the air" entirely too much and it annoys us to hear about them. You have a right to your own opinions, of course, but kindly keep them to yourself."

"Cormorant said he was never so taken back in his life. Why—but—he began, but stopped when he saw that Mrs. Darter was paying no attention to him. He might as well have been speaking to the air for all of her. Bending her long neck, she ducked her head under the water and disappeared for several moments. When she came up again she was so far off that he could not have made her hear him unless he had screamed, and he certainly wasn't going to waste breath on explaining matters if she didn't care any more about hearing him than that. He thoughtfully scratched his head with one claw."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUR SHELTER—For thou, Lord, hast been a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his distress, a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat, when the blast of the terrible ones is as a storm against the wall.—Isa. 25:4.

AVOIDING UNEMPLOYMENT

An over-supply or under-demand of labor will cause unemployment, and under-employment will cause wages to fall. When men are out of work they cannot indefinitely stand out for peak wages. They take someone's job at less money. There are two chief dangers to be guarded against. One is that a flood of foreign labor might immigrate to America, and thus cause an over-supply, and the other is that goods made by foreign labor might destroy the employer's sales of the products of his workmen in the home market. The Republican Administration of 1920-1924 guarded against these two dangers by restricting immigration, and by a protective tariff.

Both of those two dangers were extraordinarily threatening 1924 because post-war industrial conditions in Russia, Germany and Central Europe—the Near East and, in fact, even in England—would probably have caused a dangerously large rush of emigrants to America, were such a movement not severely checked and except for the efficient Protective Tariff, European producers would undoubtedly have been able to under-sell (as they did in 1920) practically every American product in the home market.

The difference between the Republican and Democratic Tariff policies, is the same difference that exists between an American "Protective" Tariff and the Low Revenue Tariff policy of Great Britain, and since these two countries are great manufacturing rivals, it is reasonable to examine the actual results to manufacturing and labor of the respective systems during normal economic pre-war years.

The "Free Trade" system of Great Britain rewards its industries for living abroad and supporting competing nations, and penalizes them for staying at home and helping to defend and support their own country.

PRIDE IN VOTING

It should be with a thrill that the young man or woman registers his or her name for the first time for voting. Young people may well have sentiment of pride in taking on their share of the work of governing the country.

The ballot is a priceless possession. It has cost us an infinite amount, not merely in the struggles of our ancestors, but in the efforts of men and women who for ages have fought against kings and tyrants to demolish democracy.

The ballot does not necessarily give freedom or good government. All over the world are nations where people have the ballot, but they do not know how to use it, and their representative government is a farce and a sham. Friday and Saturday are the last registration days for 1928. All who expect to vote on November 6 must register this year regardless of previous registration.

SAFER FLYING

Somebody comments on the increasing number of accidents to fliers. As a matter of fact flying becomes safer. Planes are made better, more dependable. The number of accidents, of course, is accounted for by the tremendously increased number of fliers within the last year or two. In California an airplane is exhibited which will be safe even though the engine stalls. Speed and utility have been taken care of. The element of safety will come next.

ELASTIC TYPE

Horace Carr, Cleveland artist-printer, has realized the dream of newspaper headline writers. He has invented elastic type. If this should become practical it might mean that no longer would the newspaper copy reader be forced to write that separate and distinct language known as "headlines."

COAL

Notwithstanding the increased use of oil for fuel, don't despise the lowly coal. There will soon be a coal conference in Pittsburgh which will consider the uses of coal from every angle. Perfumes, drugs, chemicals, laboratory experiments will all enter into the discussion. Coal is vastly more than fuel. It is the makings of a great variety of products. We aren't through with coal. Perhaps we are just beginning to know what to do with it.

INSANITY

A North Dakota farmer whose wife had become insane was questioned. He could not understand why his wife should be insane, he said. She had not been subjected to any excitement. "Why, for 40 years," he said, "she hasn't been out of her backyard or her kitchen."

It's not speed that brings insanity. It's not excitement, so much as it is monotony. You who think you are busy and hurried and have too much to do may be glad of it when you think of those hungering souls in the far corners of the country who haven't been out of their dooryards and their kitchens in 40 years.

FAME

Fame is sharp pointed at the peak. The seats are more comfortable a little further down the slopes toward obscurity. If you don't believe it ask Francis X. Bushman, once the best known and most popular of male movie stars. Bushman is said to be coming back in popularity. For a time after the peak of his fame he was in comparative obscurity. Once he used to create a traffic jam when he took a walk. Looking back over his record he says it's more comfortable not to be so popular. That should all of us who are not likely to get far above the line of mediocrity.

NEWS COMMENT and VIEWS

The Diary

of a

New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK — At last New York is becoming excited about politics. As in other parts of the country, party lines are being broken.

Pity the poor old regulars among the voters, with the Republican Sun supporting Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat, for governor, over Attorney General Albert Ottinger, Republican. The Sun is supporting Herbert Hoover for president. As in the Telegram, but, like the Sun, it's for Roosevelt for governor.

Franklin D. Roosevelt is not to be confused with Theodore Roosevelt, son of the late president, who ran on the Republican ticket against Smith for governor, and was defeated. Franklin D. is of a different branch of the family.

New York politicians say there is a "whispering" campaign on upstate. As one paper puts it, the "whisperers" are said to be against Smith because he is a Catholic, and Ottinger because he is a Jew. But I don't place much credence in it. For Colonel Herbert H. Lehman, whom the Democrats nominated for lieutenant governor, also is a Jew. These assertions merely denote that New York City at last realizes there is a political campaign on. But it took the state conventions to convince this city, which doesn't see much beyond the Hudson.

Obscene plays will be rarer on the Broadway stages. Mae West's most recent experience with her "Pleasure Man" indicates that.

The new law against obscene plays is proved workable. Mae, who is acting in another play of her own authorship (and is enormously successful at it), insists "Pleasure Man" had a moral. But police couldn't see it that way.

That town's literary lights are, as usual, excited over the possibilities of police censorship. Police in the past have closed plays that afterwards were proved to be near-masterpieces.

The consensus is that Mae West has strengthened the case of the police and censorship. Which means that plays this season will toe the mark.

A play reviewer told me last night that of fourteen plays he had seen of the new season's crop not one had aroused an emotion within his breast.

Not only are plays at a dead level, but many theaters remain closed.

Even though a few really good plays have trickled through, the mere incident of police raiding Mae West's "Pleasure Man" has furnished the only actual excitement of the present Broadway season.

I fear that Gene Tunney is the most heartily disliked man today in New York newspaper offices. I saw the executive of the photographic branch of one of the largest papers grit his teeth and pound the desk and growl invectives when he heard that the retiring heavyweight champ smashed all cameras (or had police do it) at his wedding to Polly Lauder.

If Tunney ever does sink into obscurity, he'll have to crawl on his hands and knees after cameramen if he desires any pictures taken. At that, the photographic folk would give their souls (at the present time) for a few intimate shots of him with Polly.

I suppose the home folks are back from the world series games in New York. If so, they can tell you none of the natives worked New York is more small towny than any small town I know.

You can get the time of day in New York by paying five cents and calling the telephone bureau of the New York Telephone company. When daylight saving ended there were 65,120 calls and the toll was $3,255.

How's this for hokum?

The head of a company employing several scores of salesmen dealing with farmers used to tell his men:

"If you go to a farm and they have a dog, don't delay a moment learning the dog's name—and don't forget it. The next time you come, be sure to call that dog by name. If it's a good dog, or a pretty dog, say so. Find out the names of the children, too. And see that the children know your name. It is almost impossible to have anything but friendly relations with a caller who knows your dog and children by name and who is personally known by name to the children."

TOO FAMILIAR

The pupils had a favorite teacher, as they do at all schools.

One of the children was a little girl, born of foreign parents, and she had a wholesome respect for this particular teacher. She persisted, however, in referring to her as Mrs. Smith.

"Why," asked one of the other pupils, "don't you call her Miss Smith? She isn't married."

"Oh," replied the girl, "I wouldn't dare do that. You see, I don't know her well enough."

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Pacifism can take forms which I consider queer.

The principle is all right, I do believe. Also I believe that the excesses which governments give, for taking up arms, almost always are the fault of pacifism. Further, that the expression "defensive warfare" is as nearly pure as purity can be.

But a thing like the Ford peace expedition—really think that was a little eccentric, to say the least.

Any normal individual who went on that pilgrimage, as I did, among the newspaper correspondents, will agree with me, I feel sure.

Admitting that it was a queer expedition, it seems to me it follows, as a matter of course, that the person who thought up the idea, and sold it to Henry Ford, was queer, too—not necessarily queer in all respects, but so pronounced a pacifist, as to be termed a visionary on that subject at least, without exaggerating.

However, is Mme. Schwimmer queer enough to be deemed ineligible for American citizenship? Federal Judge George A. Carpenter says so.

Rosika applied to him for naturalization, in Chicago, quite a long time ago. The judge, recalling the Ford peace expedition, asked her if she thought war justifiable under any circumstances. Mme. Schwimmer answered that she positively did not. Whereupon her application was turned down.

Rosika appealed. The court of appeals pooh-poohed what it called Judge Carpenter's "trick question" and ordered her naturalized.

Did that end the case? Not at all. Naturalization Commissioner Raymond F. Crist, of the labor department, holds that Judge Carpenter was quite right. So he, in turn, through the justice department, appealed to the federal supreme bench, which has just called for the appeals court's findings, to be passed on by Chief Justice Ratt et al, in Washington.

Strange as it may seem—to people, like me, who view even an over-developed love of peace, as an error on the right side, if an error at all—Commissioner Crist is a very liberal-minded official.

In the main, he conceded to me. He is of the opinion that Mme. Schwimmer would make a first-class citizen.

Nevertheless, Commissioner Crist takes exception, he explains, to the appeals court's ruling that what counts is how an applicant for naturalization always has behaved; not his mental quirks—or hers.

Mme. Schwimmer's behavior having been uniformly excellent, said the appeals court, o. k., naturalize her—who cares what she thinks?

The law says that what she thinks matters, too, according to Commissioner Crist. That is the point he wants the supreme court to settle—not so much because he finds fault with Mme. Schwimmer, as for reference in connection with other cases which may come up later on.

All the same it looks pretty severe on Mme. Schwimmer to me, especially just after the labor department's abandonment of its effort to deport George Remus, who killed his wife.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

CARE OF THE CHILD'S HANDS AND FEET

Hands and feet all come into consideration during the period when the child is past infancy and quickly going forward into little boy or little girlhood.

Nails at this time become quite a problem. The child's nails are quite soft, and they must be taken care of regularly or they will break, split, develop hang-nails and become a menace to the comfort and happiness of the child. Do not attempt to use a file on the child's nails. They are entirely too soft to make this, anything but a painful experiment. Manicure once a week, but make it a very simple manicure, cutting the nails not too short, and straight across with a small manicure scissors. Avoid cutting down into the corners, for nails grow fast on the child that persistent cutting this way develops a tendency towards ingrown nails. At the same time, the child's feet, you can also, with an orange stick dipped in cotton and moistened with a little perfume cream, push back the cuticle from the base of the nails. You must be very gentle about this, and I suggest that you make it something of a game so that the child has no fear of the manicure. Watch your child at the stage for the development of habits.

The thumb sucking habit, which is not only a menace to health but to beauty, frequently springs into being at this period. Teach your child to keep his fingers away from his face.

Correct shoes are another important consideration to the child now. Beauty, as we know it today, is not only a matter of a pretty skin—it is perfection in every detail. And not the least of these details is the shape of the foot. Neither girl nor boy is going to start out in life with the armor of health that he or she needs if years of neglect have resulted in broken down arches, crooked toes or the corns and bunions which usually have their inception in early childhood. Never try to save money on your child's feet. Economize by all means, on clothes, even on underwear, rather than footwear. It is not a cosmetic matter to the baby that his little suits are of linen or that his socks are of silk, but it is of tremendous importance that his feet are comfortable. Select wide, nature-shaped shoes and get them to fit the baby when you are buying them. Don't figure that in three months he will grow into a large shoe. If it is a normal, active boy or girl we are dealing with, the shoes will be quite worn out in three months, and it may be three months of torture if the sensitive little feet are slipping

Diet and Fertility.
"Two years ago I weighed 225 pounds and I am but 5 ft. 2 in. tall, so you can imagine how I looked. Today, by following your instructions, I weigh but 135, a loss of 90 pounds. I look and feel, as you know, a different person. I had female troubles so badly when I was overweight that the doctor said I never could have children. But today I am a mother of a lovely baby girl. So you see what results I received by reducing. I can thank you for this, Dr.

Lulu. More power to you, "MRS. D."

I am glad to run a letter such as Mrs. D's because I know it is more effective in making converts to the ideal of normal weight than all the admonitions I could give. I have quite a number of similar letters. Women who had despaired of becoming mothers and were greatly saddened by it, have borne children after the excess weight was lost.

It has long been known that overweight seems to be frequently accompanied by sterility both in the woman and man. In the last few years, through scientific work in nutrition that has been done through animal experimentation, it has been found that there is a definite relationship between fertility and proper nutrition.

There seems to be necessary a definite vitamin for fertility which has been named vitamin E, although the deficiency of the other vitamins will definitely affect it. The unbalanced diet which brings on overweight, the excess of fat, starches and sugars which the overweight invariably indulges in, makes an unbalance of the vitamins even though they are being taken.

So far, experiments show that the vitamin E is present in highest concentration in wheat germ oil. (I haven't seen any report of this being on the market yet.) But it is also present in lettuce, lean meat and many other foods.

Thank you, Mrs. D., for letting us know your good results. The instructions Mrs. D. followed are contained in a booklet on the subject. For those who are interested, we have also the article on diet in pregnancy and nursing and a list of books on post and pre-natal care.

Living and Loving

Is It Fair To Older Women for Man To Marry for Money?

If you were a young bachelor and in debt, and had a chance to wed a well-to-do widow much older, would you do it? Of course, if you are in love with her you would, but would the removal of the financial worry compensate you for your loss of freedom and feeling of obligation? Would it be fair to the woman? Would it be a good sporting proposition for both? Two letters have come from a young man who has this problem to solve and asks our advice. The first:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young man 31 years of age. I am considerably in debt, though no fault of my own, and my financial prospects are not good. I know a widow who is 47-48 years of age. She is well to do. I have reason to think that she would marry me if I asked her. I honor and respect her, but I certainly do not 'love' her. Should we marry? I think we could live harmoniously together, but I will admit that if it were not for financial matters I would prefer to remain a bachelor. What do you think?" "ANXIOUS."

The second:
"Dear Mrs. Lee: Help! help! that widow has proposed to me. What shall I do? I put her off for ever. I don't like that money. What shall I say?" "ANXIOUS."

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

WATER-BIRD WITH NO USE FOR LAND-LUBBERS

"Mrs. Darter scorned Cormorant's greeting and hissed with scorn at what she considered his ignorance in regard to Darter customs. 'Don't flatter yourself,' said she. 'I have never swam after any Cormorant yet and I don't think I ever shall. I did not come to see you at all, but to fetch my husband home. One of the children slipped from the branch on which he was perching and twisted his right wing. Poor baby fell into the water, but I managed to fish him out—he is too small to swim far yet, you know—and bound up his wing with a reed. I don't know as much about such matters, though, as Mr. Darter, and I wanted him to come and see if I had done it right."

"However, I see husband has already gone, and he is swimming in that direction. I suppose he is homeward bound."

"He is; he heard you scream," explained Cormorant, "and he left at once. He didn't even wait to say goodbye."

"Of course, he didn't. I will say as much for Darter, he is a good husband and father," declared Mrs. Darter, proudly. "But I am wasting my time talking to you. I must follow him. Only I do wish that you would answer my question. Have you any respect for birds that are afraid of the water?"

"Of course, I have," Cormorant was sure decided about it. "How could a bird like the water if he had never been near it, and lots of feathered folk are born and live most of their lives in the depths of the forests? The only time they see the waves is when they cross them on their twice-a-year travels. I have met some very fine land birds on my journey. In fact, I don't like to stay in the water too long at a time myself."

"Here wait a moment. What is your hurry, Mrs. Darter?"

Sorry I could not answer before, but letters must be answered as nearly as possible in turn. I cannot see mortgaging your whole future for the sake of help in paying off your debts. If you loved the woman dearly, the difference in ages would not matter so much, although it is a good deal. But to marry her knowing you do not love her, and expecting her to pay your debts seems to me a distinctly bad bargain for her and not sporting of you. How do you know she'll pay your debts when you have married her? How are you going to feel being dependent on a woman for money? The very fact that she took matters into her own hands and did the proposing argues that she is the managing type. Are you willing to be managed all the rest of your life? If you marry her you will not be free to pay attention to girls you own set and probably have to do more or less what your wife says. Besides you will incur the dislike of your acquaintances who will guess the reason you married. Better work your way out of your difficulties. You will be happier in the end, and so will she, for a woman is getting herself into a lot of trouble marrying a man so much younger. She will know you don't love her, you cannot keep it from her, and she will naturally be jealous of any girls you may meet. Have courage and say no, and I know you will be glad of it always.

"Mrs. Darter had dropped into the water and was now swimming after her husband, who by this time had reached the stump where they lived and was wriggling out of the water towards the nest. The lady paid no attention to Cormorant's cry to come back, other than to hasten her pace. She did, however, twist about her snaky neck and call a scornful goodbye over her shoulder."

"Come and see us some time," Cormorant, but I must ask you not to talk so much about the land birds. Neither husband nor I have any use for them—we think they are 'up in the air' entirely too much and it annoys us to hear about them. You have a right to your own opinions, of course, but kindly keep them to yourself."

"Cormorant said he was never so taken back in his life. Why—but—he began, but stopped when he saw that Mrs. Darter was paying no attention to him. He might as well have been speaking to the air for all of her. Bending her long neck, she ducked her head under the water and disappeared for several moments. When she came up again she was so far off that he could not have made her hear him unless he had screamed, and he certainly wasn't going to waste breath on explaining matters if she didn't care any more about hearing him than that. He thoughtfully scratched his head with one claw."

Next—"The Lady and the Frog."

What the New York fans want to know is what became of the Giants.

The last report was that they were dropping so fast they were expected to be in the Sally League by October.

SCHOOL CHILDREN TO SEE WITTENBERG GAME ON SATURDAY

School children from eleven counties, including Greene, will be guests of Wittenberg College at Springfield, Ohio, on Saturday when the "Fighting Lutherans" meet Marshall College in the Wittenberg stadium.

Harry Gerhardt and C. Raymond Isley, field secretaries of the college, have been designated to call upon superintendents and principals in the eleven counties to invite teachers and students to the game.

Marshall College, of Huntington, W. Va., trained by coaches who learned the grid game at Ohio State, Ohio University and W. Va. Wesleyan, will send a squad of forty to the stadium at Wittenberg, and spectators will probably see a great game.

Representatives Gerhardt and Isley will present invitations to schools in Greene, Montgomery, Warren, Clinton, Fayette, Madison, Union, Logan, Shelby, Champaign and Miami counties.

WISHES EVERYBODY TO KNOW ALL ABOUT THIS NEW KONJOLA

Cedarville, Ohio Man Says This New Medicine Ended Stomach and Kidney Troubles

The extent to which this new medicine is helping the people of Xenia has become the talk of the drug and medical trades of this section. Thronging are calling daily to see the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, and near his personal explanation of this surprising remedy. At the same time, a stream of voluntary endorsements and reports are received from people of this vicinity, describing the remarkable benefits they have received from the use of this medicine. One of the latest Xenia residents to make a public endorsement of Konjola is Mr. John Baker, Cedarville, Ohio. (near Xenia).

"It is so wonderful the way Konjola reached the source of all my troubles that I will always tell others about the unusual merits of this medicine," said Mr. Baker. "I ended every trace of stomach trouble that I was suffering."

"My stomach was in a painful condition and everything I did to help it was of no avail. The gas which used to form in the pit of my stomach would rise against my chest and throat, bloating me and making me feel terrible. My heart would flutter and palpitate so much that there were times when I thought it would quit beating. A hot, sour, bitter liquid would come into my mouth, burning like fire and really making me sick. I would have the most awful belching spells and when one of these attacks came on I always had a burning headache. I lost my desire to eat and what little food I could force down would just form gas. My kidneys were in an awful state and I suffered with them for the past five years. I would get a sharp pain at the small of my back and I couldn't bend over at all. At night I couldn't rest the way I should but would have to rise several times due to bladder weakness. The next morning when I got up I felt tired and worn out. These ailments got so bad that I was a very sick man and just seemed to drag along not caring what happened."

"About this time I began hearing about Konjola and when several of my friends spoke highly of it I made inquiries and found out it was a splendid preparation for the banishing of common ailments. I bought several bottles of Konjola and started taking it as directed. It seemed to go right to the source of all my trouble and the first thing it did was to clean my system of all that poisonous matter. I kept on taking it and soon had completed a full treatment. Now, my stomach trouble is gone. I can eat anything I want without the least bit of aftereffect. The awful gas doesn't form and my heart is back to normal again. My kidneys are well and strong now, and at night when I go to bed I never have to get up. The pain in my back is gone and I feel that my kidneys are entirely relieved as they haven't bothered me since I began to take Konjola. There is not an ache or a pain anywhere and I feel that I owe all my good health to Konjola. I want to endorse this medicine and hope that all who see this will try this Konjola."

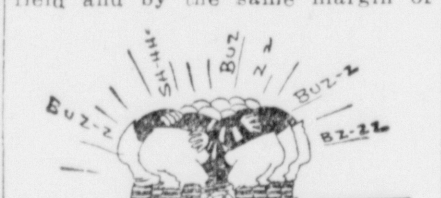

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.—Adv.

PUNTS AND PASSES

With one victory, one defeat and one scoreless tie to show for the first three games this season, Xenia Central High School's greatly improved football team started preparations this week for the Withrow High School game at Cincinnati next Friday afternoon.

Xenia has an old score of two to settle with the Withrow Tigers. Central High has not forgotten the time that the Tigers, although out-luckied from start to finish, won a lousy 7 to 0 victory on a muddy skidroad at Cincinnati in 1926. In this year only fourteen points were scored against the Blue and White eleven, yet two games were lost by scores of 7 to 0.

Now has Xenia fully recovered from the humiliation of being ripped up again by this same aggregation of Queen City players last year, this time on the local field and by the same margin of one touchdown when at least a tie game was in prospect. The 1927 battle was more colorful and Withrow, with a flashy forward passing attack, made off with a 19 to 13 victory.

This year Coach Wilson's proteges are looking for revenge. Central, however, will have no reason to take the Tigers lightly this season. Withrow has won three games in a row and last Friday defeated Dayton Oakwood 31 to 6, completely outclassing the fairly strong Dayton eleven.

The Xenia squad came through the Piqua struggle in excellent shape and when noses are counted next Friday, Xenia, barring injuries during practice this week, will be able to throw its entire resources into the contest.

The Xenia eleven did a notable thing last Saturday. It marked the first time in three years that a Piqua eleven has either been held scoreless or has been tied. It was also the first time since 1922 that Central has come so close to beating its rival on the gridiron. Since 1922 when Xenia defeated Piqua 14 to 7, the local school had lost three games by decisive margins.

One thing is therefore certain. The season will not be counted a failure if Xenia loses to Withrow. On the other hand it could easily be counted a success if the Cincinnati school can be beaten.

Bowling

The Red Wing Co. made certain of remaining in first place in the Recreation Bowling League for at least another week by trouncing The McDowell and Torrence Lumber Co. quintet three straight games for the second time this season Monday night. Anderson, leadoff man for the winners, turned in a series of 60's, including a score of 242. J. Purdon and H. Jordan tied for high honors for the losers, each with 52's. Box score:

EAST END NEWS

MRS. JAMES HARRIS
Correspondent 91-R
Tel.

Patrons of Lincoln and East Senior and Junior High Schools are informed that grade cards will be given out Wednesday afternoon at the close of school for the first time this school year.

Each pupil will receive two cards in the form of envelope instead of one as has been the custom in past years. The additional card gives specific information pertaining to the child's general study and recitation habits and also conduct and character. Each teacher has thoughtfully checked each item in which the pupil should maintain a higher standard and patrons are asked to give special attention to the same and thus co-operate with the schools for the best welfare of the individual child.

Signatures on both cards are to be made by the parent and not by the child.

FREE DIAGNOSTIC CHEST CLINICS TO BE HELD IN COUNTY

A diagnostic chest clinic with thorough physical examination of persons believed to have incipient cases of tuberculosis will be conducted in Spring Valley and Jamestown in the next few weeks as part of the state and district health program, as announced by Health Dept. and Public Health League following receipt from the State Department of Health of an offer to install such services here. This service will be without expense to those examined.

The Health Dept. has suggested October 23 and 24 as the most convenient time for holding the clinic, which will extend over two days. Two recognized chest specialists will conduct the examinations, assisted by a nurse from the State Department of Health. The local clinic will be the second of a series being conducted in various parts of the county during the year under joint auspices of the State Department of Health, and local Public Health League.

Much of the benefit derived from these clinics depends on proper organization and the selection of suitable cases for diagnosis. Patients are secured from every part of the city and county so that this service, both diagnostic and educational may reach a true cross section of the entire health districts. The organization of the diagnostic chest clinic held in Spring Valley and Jamestown is being carried out by Mrs. H. A. Jenkins, a nurse employed by the Public Health League to do this special clinic work, and she is being assisted by Miss Grace C. Donning, R. N. Clinic nurse from the State Department of Health. The nurses will visit all the physicians in the southern part of the county for this clinic.

He is 22 years old.

FINED FOR DRIVING WHEN INTOXICATED

A fine of $100 and costs, sentence of thirty days in the County Jail and suspension of driving rights for six months was the penalty imposed upon Omer E. Jenkins, this city by Mayor John W. Prugh Tuesday morning after Omer had been found while intoxicated. Jenkins pleaded guilty.

He was arrested Monday night by Patrolman Charles Thompson after pedestrians called the attention of police to the fact his erratic driving was responsible for a minor auto accident.

Police declared that Jenkins, driving west on the wrong side of W. Second St., drove his car against the rear wheel of an auto owned by Karl B. Bloom, parked in front of his residence at 27 W. Second St. on the south side of the street. Neither machine was damaged.

BORAH BASES TALK ON "WET" ATTACK

RICHMOND, Oct. 16.—A contest between law and order, the constitution, and American citizenship on the one hand, and an organization in New York which does not believe in law and order was the manner in which Senator William E. Borah described the presidential campaign in an address here.

Borah attacked Governor Smith's prohibition policies. He said that he was puzzled by what Smith might mean by a "scientific non-intoxicating beverage."

DEFERS SENTENCE

Judge S. C. Wright deferred sentence at the conclusion of a hearing of Wilbur Dillon, 22, Osborn, Tuesday morning in Probate Court on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of 14-year-old Grace Littleton, also of Osborn. Clayton Grisson, a minor, also of Osborn, was to be given a hearing Tuesday afternoon on a similar charge growing out of the same case. The sheriff's office made the arrests.

MARINE MASCOT

Jiggs will be on the sidelines when the Marines meet the St. Xavier Musketeers at Cincinnati, October 27, and U. of Dayton Flyers at Dayton, Thanksgiving Day. Both the Musketeers and Flyers defeated the Marines in 1926, and the Leathernecks returned the compliment last year. Lively contests are expected in the "rubber" games.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS
Herbert Bowermaster visited the high school Friday afternoon. He has been paying us about one visit per week since school has started. We wonder what the attraction is.

BEAVER FALL FAIR COMING THIS WEEK; HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Some special features are being introduced this year, along with the usual program. There will be six stunts each night. The classes of the high school will perform as usual, two each night. On Friday night, Rev. Tifford will present a marionette show.
The corn exhibit is open to all that are interested. The winner of the "sweepstakes" will receive a hatchet furnished by Babb's Hardware Store. Those interested in games of chance may try to guess the number of grains of corn a certain drake will eat during the two days of the fair. Alpha Seed and Grain Co. will give a sack of seeded feed to the closest guess. Don't forget the dates, October 18 and 19.
Tuesday night, October 9, 1928, the Beaver Girls' Guild had a masquerade party at the home of Ellen Sayrs and Faye Vanover. They held their guild meeting from 7:30 to 9, after which refreshments and a mighty good time closed the pleasant evening's meeting.

Of late it has been noticed that each morning as you enter the school building you see pupils sitting in their seats studying very hard. The big reason is that this week closes the six weeks' period for which the first grades are given out and this is "test" week. Every one seems under a great nervous strain, but each will be back to normal next week. Perhaps a little more even distribution of the worry about grades throughout the whole six weeks might be more effective than this frantic last minute rush.
"THE (UN)VACANT CHAIR"
Supt. Ewbank has recently "assembled" a most wonderful chair, from an individual seat removed from an auto, and placed upon a pivot base of what was once a pivot office chair—result—a veritable Morris chair and revolving bed combined. Each teacher that saw it immediately resolved to have as much business as possible in the office after this and each pupil began to hunt excuses for using the phone. It is indeed a wonderful chair, withstands its continual usage and is a constant temptation to the weary. However, there is no use to worry, as it seems to be strongly built.
The Beaver football team traveled all the way to Dayton last Friday to meet the fast Wilbur Wright School squad. The outstanding play of the game was made by Kenneth Stewart in the second quarter when he caught a pass and went over the line for a touchdown. Wilbur Wright scored a touchdown in the first quarter, and another the latter part of the game. The game ended with the score standing 13 to 6 in their favor.
EAST END NEWS
H. P. Howard of 34 Columbus Ave. who has been confined to his home sick, for several years was given quite a surprise on his fifty-seventh birthday Thursday evening, October 11.
Twenty-seven men formed a party and marched to his home, presented him a gift in currency, and immediately opened various games of amusement.

After the merry-making a delicious repast was served by his daughters, Deloris and Catherine. Mr. and Mrs. Lester Lane, E. Third St., left Saturday to be the guests of relatives and friends in Mt. Vernon and Akron for about a week.
Mr. B. C. Watley, of Dayton, was the Sunday guest of his wife, Mrs. Francis Watley, 805 E. Market St. Mrs. Watley, who has been very ill, is somewhat improved.

FARMER REPORTS THEFTS OF HOGS
Ernest Hutchison, living off the Old Town and Clifton Pike, reported to the sheriff's office Tuesday that four red hogs, weighing about 175 pounds apiece, were stolen from the fields on his farm some time Sunday night.
The hogs were identified by holes in the right ear of each. The thieves cut through a wire fence, backed a truck up to the enclosure and loaded the hogs on the vehicle.
O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, who investigated, reported no clues were discovered.

WHERE MONEY WENT

"The Home of Thrift"

Unprecedented speculation, Four Billions of Dollars in loans to New York brokers, at one time, Three Billions of this coming from corporations and individuals in every part of the country, Interest rates running as high as 10%—all, taken together, fully answer the oft-repeated query as to where money and credit went so suddenly in early summer.

Answering another question as to how long these conditions will continue, it may be properly said that just so soon as the present wild orgy of speculation diminishes, just so soon will money flow back into its accustomed channels and the situation will again become normal.

A hopeful sign that the tide has already turned is the fact that our receipts for the past four weeks on three of our four forms of deposit have been considerably larger than they were for same period last year. This indicates the constancy and thrift of the rank and file of our depositors, and their immunity from the passing craze for taking a turn at the Wheel of Fortune.

WHERE MONEY WENT

"The Home of Thrift"

Unprecedented speculation, Four Billions of Dollars in loans to New York brokers, at one time, Three Billions of this coming from corporations and individuals in every part of the country, Interest rates running as high as 10%—all, taken together, fully answer the oft-repeated query as to where money and credit went so suddenly in early summer.

Answering another question as to how long these conditions will continue, it may be properly said that just so soon as the present wild orgy of speculation diminishes, just so soon will money flow back into its accustomed channels and the situation will again become normal.

A hopeful sign that the tide has already turned is the fact that our receipts for the past four weeks on three of our four forms of deposit have been considerably larger than they were for same period last year. This indicates the constancy and thrift of the rank and file of our depositors, and their immunity from the passing craze for taking a turn at the Wheel of Fortune.
